One last thing, I can't believe I forgot to include:

We are providing $10k per community to restore balance and take care of the fatigue, the sense of loss, as communities and families welcome home these spirits that the land has lovingly held until they could be found and returned.

The communities have ways of knowing and the cultural guidance to help shape the healing work that is needed. These funds are to help support that work in a good way. Some ideas and options for consideration, acknowledging that each community has its own knowledge and wisdom.

- Honorariums, fees, and travel expenses for helpers to visit your community such as:
 - Local or trusted Sacred Knowledge Keepers who have a relationship with your community
 - Indigenous Focusing Orientated Therapy Practitioners, or other providers who can offer body-focused grounding approaches collectively or to families that are culturally safe and trauma specific (to avoid vicarious or sharing traumatization).
 - Culturally Safe Mental Health Practitioners (note that providers listed on the FNHA Health Benefits Provider list are not eligible for this funding as that program can be billed for services) for group processing or support for individuals or families.
 - Critical Incident Stress Management Provider facilitated group or individual family debriefing to help identify ways to help communities sit with this news and keep the community safer in light of this discovery.

- Ceremonies and Gatherings conducted following COVID-19 safety protocols (for more information on public health measures: <https://www2.gov.bc.ca/gov/content/covid-19/info/restrictions>).
 - Drumming & singing
 - Sacred fire
 - Candlelight vigil
 - Brushings or smudges
 - Community walk
 - Feast/potlatch/luncheons
 - Healing circles/talking circles
- Spiritual Care
 - Creating a local, physical memorial/altar that members can visit to honor the spirits of the 215, and others who may have been taken at other residential schools.
 - Providing a meaningful area for community members to leave items (eg. medicines, children's shoes, flowers).
 - Travel support for families/descendants of stolen children who attended the Kamloops Residential School or travel for a sacred knowledge keeper(s) to bring the children's' spirits home. Alternatively, any other ceremonial practices to bring their spirits home.
 - Harvest or sharing of traditional foods and medicines that restore balance or provide spiritual care for the spirits of community members, with guidance on how to use these to increase connection in community and support the grief and loss collectively felt.

Good Morning Jamie

Hope you are doing well. Sending a quick update on the mental health supports in BC.

The discovery of the mass grave on Tk'emlups te Secwepemc territory has affected all Indigenous communities across the province and Canada. This finding touches each of us and many in our communities are triggered and grieving from this discovery that validates what residential school survivors have been saying for generations. It is also recognized that there is a lot of fatigue in our bodies and communities around the atrocities committed at residential schools and the ongoing stress of the pandemic, the toxic drug crisis, and our ongoing work in health and wellness.

We are holding debriefing sessions in regions, with the Health Directors, front line workers and Leadership.

- FNHA gathered staff from across BC, approximately 500+ attended, focussed on importance of self care. Cultural Support Workers, George Jeffrey and Freddy Johnson, and FNHC Chair, FNHA Board Chair, CEO, HR VP were part of the speakers panel. Staff were provided a list of resources available to all.

-The northern region held gathering of their front line staff to discuss the challenges and what may present itself to leadership and staff as a result of last weeks' announcement; and to share with leadership and staff the importance of their own self-care and provide examples of ways that they can take good care of their spirits as they provide the important support and work to their communities.
- Other sessions are scheduled next week.

- 6 Health and cultural supports deployed to Tk'emlups last weekend as requested by community
- Indian Residential School Survivors Society (IRSSS) has moved operations from 8:00 to 5:00 (Monday to Friday) to 24/7 effective June 4th
- The IRS/MMIWG/IDS health and cultural workers have started to provide in person health and cultural supports. Many requests received from communities across BC for in person support. Virtual support continues to be provided.
- The two toll free lines KU-US and IRSSS are receiving calls from across the country. Quite a few of the calls are from non-indigenous persons, young people and many survivors that are being re-triggered from the findings of the 215 children buried in mass graves.
- Approximately 300 people gathered at Fraser Lake to remember the 215 children. Health and cultural supports deployed to support the participants.
- FNHB is working on expediting the prior approvals for the counselling support to deal with triggers and crisis from the Tk'emlups.
- the Mental Health and Wellness Manager from Interior Region who is also a member of Tk'emlups met with Brenda Restoule and me last Friday. This was most helpful. Need for debriefing, more indigenous clinicians and a road map for mental health and wellness were identified. Follow-up call with Brenda requested. We are looking to arrange this for next week.

The two BC crisis lines will continue to support all callers and provide the immediate support, grounding, etc. What would be helpful is for us to develop a seamless process for follow-up for client calls from outside BC. I have flagged this to Gina for the call she is arranging for all IRS regional leads.

That's it for now.

Good Morning Jamie

I was multi-tasking and had my response sitting in the draft box.

We don't have an overall plan yet; however we have received requests for:

Kamloops Residential Schools (old)

- deployment of cultural supports (10) to support local leadership, residential school survivors, families and the hundreds (approx 600+) of survivors and families from across BC that are showing up at the old Kamloops IRS on the weekend and will likely continue to arrive (Actioned).

- 2 full time and 2 part-time clinical counsellors for the interior region to respond to numerous requests from local communities near the old Kamloops Indian Residential School (in progress)

- FNHA will distribute a communication to providers requesting interest in (4) positions with the Mental Health and Wellness team in the Interior Region. The positions will follow the criteria below, and will be funded through the IRS program.

4 counsellors – Part time or Full time

- 4 counsellors – Part time or Full time
 - Funded by IRS program, contract with MHW team
 - Under professional association or regulatory body (met by HB eligibility criteria)
 - Covered by liability insurance (met by HB eligibility criteria)
 - Location: Interior Region
 - Services Offered:
 - In person
 - Telehealth
 - Virtual
 - Expertise in complex trauma, and grief and loss required
 - Expertise with Children and Youth an asset

- FNHB will share out communication to providers about the tragic news from Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc, to bring awareness and highlight a possible increase in calls from clients needing timely support

- FNHB has reached out to providers in the Interior region to confirm their availability for new clients and will be providing an updated list for distribution
- We are receiving requests from our other BC regions for additional cultural supports (waiting further details)
- Our 2 IRS CA Holders, Tsow Ten Le Lum and IRSSS as well as our KU-US crisis line have been requested to provide support 7 days per week including evenings (will need to increase workforce for relief and additional hours of operation). The contact information for these organizations have been posted nationally as contact numbers, resulting in huge increase in calls in just over the weekend.
- The two CA Holders and the KU-US Crisis line are getting calls across Canada. We will respond to all calls and deal with immediate concern of clients calling; however we will need to set up protocols with other regions to refer the callers back to their respective regions for follow-up. (In progress)
- I will continue to monitor the capacity
- I received 19 calls over the weekend plus emails from Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba, Atlantic, and BC. Apparently my contact information was sent out in Instagram. I am trying to get this pulled as I am inundated with requests and I have responded to all calls as the individuals may be in crisis. Most of these callers are requesting counselling support and have provided them the regional contact information.

I will provide further updates.

Thanks
Virginia

I can't imagine how difficult and busy things are right now. Richard Jock emailed Valerie Gideon asking about a potential need for resources to support an EOC structure to support the community and surrounding communities. Are you aware of this?

I have been asked to look into what support we may be able to provide. I assume that EOC stands for “emergency operations centre” but do you have a sense of whether the FNHA might be looking for FNIHBers to ‘work’ in the EOC, or if the need is funding for the FNHA to stand up the EOC, or if what is potentially being sought is mental wellness workers from other regions to support the community(-ies)?

Deputies- A few bullets re: call this evening:

In attendance: Officials from ISC (Kelley, Keith, Gail, Danielle and Joanne); CIRNA (Martin Reiher and Karen Turcotte); Heritage (Emmanuelle Sajous); Justice (Marie Bourry) - CIRNA will act as secretariat and ensure that all Comms shops are invited to daily touch-base sessions for at least the next week. We can add CFRDO as well.

The draft DM info note (LED piece) will be shared with CIRNA/ISC ADMs on the call.

ISC noted that there is a need for a single point of authoritative information (for us, being run through LED for now) in terms of work/funding done, under way and planned, as well as for a single system to track requests/proposals coming in, recognizing CIRNA's mandate and funding envelope. We further suggested and there was general agreement on the need to stand up an incident command centre, for which ADMs will identify leads (more on this below).

CIRNA is collecting data from ISC and Heritage on expenditures to date and planned; a clear narrative on work done and planned is also needed. The joint appearance tomorrow morning will also be instructive on future lines of research and action.

There was general agreement that the multi-faceted nature (land surveying, perimeter security, site demolition/ remediation, mental health supports, communications, justice system) requires a whole-of-government approach.

Public Safety will also be engaged - not just RCMP but more so in relation to the National Centre for Missing Persons and Unidentified Remains (it was noted that this organization is also being overwhelmed with calls and that Provincial coroners determine whether sites are deemed to be criminal or historic - unclear if there's a possibility for them to be both).

In terms of an ISC lead, we would propose that David Russell, currently the Director of LED in BC Region and who spent many years with IRSS, would be well placed to lead on special assignment. He could report through Stephen Traynor in LED. We feel they would make a great team. Catherine has proactively reached out to through Bill Guerin and he is supportive of this proposal. If you concur, we can follow up to query David's interest.

For the month of May, average daily English call volumes were 97. Volumes started to climb on May 27 (106), May 28 (122), and May 29 (116), then dipped on Sunday May 30 (83), but spiked to 177% of the monthly average (if I've done the math right) on May 31 (172).

Subject: Update from the FNHA

FYI – Virginia T. just called from the FNHA. They will be requesting an amendment to the current funding agreement to help fund the IRSSS to increase their staff, and move to a 24hr Crisis Line support (they are currently 8am – 8pm). They are being flooded with calls (over 5000 so far) from across the country (they have been referenced in all forms of media releases and social media platforms). She also mentioned that KUUS (help line service partnered with the FNHA) is also being overwhelmed with calls...they only have 5 staff at the moment.

So far we've not been given a dollar amount.

Likely yes – while we're less directly involved in BC/FNHA matters day-to-day matters, in other regions a number of our cultural and emotional service providers are part time, so when there is a spike or surge required many of these workers pick up additional hours. In the past, the FNHA has demonstrated a great deal of capacity to get the money and services out to communities – they are also very effective at promoting the availability of services, so uptake is often faster than in other regions.

We've followed up with them today to see if they are / have been able to get additional counsellors on shift. They have a pool of qualified ones, so it may be as simple as asking which counsellors want full time / more hours.

If they are maxxed out, and aren't able to swiftly onboard new counsellors, we may need to look at other creative solutions.

Subject: Update From FNHA

Hi there,

The FNHA has provided us with their latest update – I've formatted it a bit for ease of reading. At present, they seem to be managing the response internally and have not requested additional supports from outside the province or requested additional funding. We continue to be at the ready to assist, and the regions have also been alerted. One issue that the FNHA has raised is that they are receiving calls for supports from out-of-province, so we are working with the FNHA to be able to refer these individuals to supports available in the regions where they reside.

Regards,

Jamie

FNHA UPDATE:

- 1) FNHA is providing $10k per community to restore balance and take care of the fatigue, the sense of loss, as communities and families welcome home these spirits that the land has lovingly held until they could be found and returned. This will enable communities to use their own ways of knowing and cultural guidance to help shape the healing work that is needed.
- 2) The FNHA is holding debriefing sessions in regions, with the Health Directors, front line workers and Leadership.
 - FNHA gathered staff from across BC, approximately 500+ attended, focussed on importance of self care. Cultural Support Workers, George Jeffrey and Freddy Johnson, and FNHC Chair, FNHA Board Chair, CEO, HR VP were part of the speakers panel. Staff were provided a list of resources available to all.
 - The northern region held gathering of their front line staff to discuss the challenges and what may present itself to leadership and staff as a result of last weeks' announcement; and to share with leadership and staff the importance of their own self-care and provide examples of ways that they can take good care of their spirits as they provide the important support and work to their communities.
 - Other sessions are scheduled next week.
- 3) Six health and cultural supports deployed to Tk'emlups last weekend as requested by community.
- 4) Indian Residential School Survivors Society (IRSSS) has moved operations from 8:00 to 5:00 (Monday to Friday) to 24/7 effective June 4th.

- 5) The IRS/MMIWG/IDS health and cultural workers have started to provide in person health and cultural supports. Many requests received from communities across BC for in person support. Virtual support continues to be provided.
- 6) The two toll free lines (KU-US and IRSSS) are receiving calls from across the country. Quite a few of the calls are from non-indigenous persons, young people and many survivors that are being re-triggered from the findings of the 215 children buried in mass graves.
- 7) Approximately 300 people gathered at Fraser Lake to remember the 215 children. Health and cultural supports deployed to support the participants.
- 8) FNHB is working on expediting the prior approvals for the counselling support to deal with triggers and crisis from the Tk'emlups.
- 9) The Mental Health and Wellness Manager from Interior Region who is also a member of Tk'emlups met with Brenda Restoule and Virginia Toulouse from the FNHA last Friday. The need for debriefing, more Indigenous clinicians and a road map for mental health and wellness were identified. Follow-up call with Brenda requested, and the FNHA is looking to arrange this for next week.

Mental Wellness: Missing Children and Unmarked Burials

Dear Peter Wallace:

I am writing to you today to bring urgent attention to the critical need to expand access to emotional, cultural and mental health counselling support services which has arisen from the issue of missing children and unmarked burials. The news this past weekend about the gut wrenching discovery of 215 buried children in Kamloops is a stark reminder that Canada's legacy with Indian Residential Schools is beginning a new chapter.

The Truth and Reconciliation Commission estimated that approximately 6,000 children died or went missing while attending residential schools, and were often buried in cemeteries or grave sites associated with the residential schools, local churches, or nearby municipal cemeteries far from their home. The communities and families of these children were not informed of burial locations resulting in few sites being properly protected. Many of these sites are no longer marked, have been significantly disturbed or neglected, or have changed ownership through subsequent land transfers. Not Processed as Possible Cabinet Confidences

This work is just beginning.

Commented [JB1]:

It is critically important that we ensure that mental wellness support services are accessible throughout this process. Recent events are cumulative and affecting a population that has already been hard hit by the COVID-19 pandemic. Between January 2019 and April 2021, there has been a 297% increase in the monthly call traffic to the Hope for Wellness Help Line. Anecdotally, we have heard that callers have tripled over the past week and our workforce, who are already overextended, is having difficulty keeping up with volume.

In addition, use of our Non-Insured Health Benefit mental health counselling benefit grew in 2020-21 by about 34% over the previous year (with expenditures rising to approximately $73.6 million). Approximately 37% of these expenditures are through Contribution Agreements, which enables communities themselves to manage these benefits. Roughly 6,000 clients access fee-for-service mental health counselling benefits each month.

Indigenous Services Canada’s Mental Wellness program includes approximately $107 million for emotional, cultural and mental health support services for former Indian Residential School students and their families, former Indian Day School students and their families, and for those impacted by the issue of Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls.

Not Processed as Possible Cabinet
Confidences

However, Budget 2021 subsequently announced only $597.6 million over three years, starting in 2021-22, for a distinctions-based mental health and wellness strategy with First Nations, Inuit, and the Métis Nation.

It will be critical to ensure that appropriate supports and resources are available at the regional- and local- levels to meet community and family needs. There is urgency to press ahead with work to identify unmarked burials and those buried within in light of the advancing age of Survivors and Elders who can support this work. My department will work closely with our partners as well as with survivors, communities and others, to ensure that health supports are available for all of those who need them, throughout all phases of this work.

Éy swayel [EE- SWAY-L], hello, bonjour.

I'm so pleased to join you today. Thank you for that kind introduction.

Elder (name), thank you for those words and for helping us begin this summit in a good way.

Commented [AM1]: Please note, in BC, First Nations use "good way" – it would be great if we kept that in

Before I begin, I would like to acknowledge that I am on the traditional and unceded territory of the Algonquin Anishinaabeg people.

I owe great thanks to the First Nations Summit Political Executive for inviting me to join you today.

I'd also like to extend my greetings to all the First Nations and Tribal Councils in British Columbia, the Elders, all the Chiefs and leaders, and community members.

It has been a while since I have joined you at this Summit, and I am grateful to hear updates from your communities. I'd also like to take a moment to share my profound sadness on learning of the discovery of 215 children buried at the site of the the former Kamloops Indian Residential School. I spoke to Kukpi7 [Que Pee] Casimir last week to offer the full support of ISC as her community, surrounding communities – and all of us – honour and mourn the loss of these children.

Before I continue I also want to acknowledge and thank the National Chief of the Assembly of First Nations as he concludes his final term. National Chief Perry Bellegarde, it has been a real honour to serve alongside you as we work on our shared goal of improving the health and wellbeing of First Nations, and fighting the COVID-19 pandemic. You have been an extremely valued partner, an outspoken advocate for First Nations people, and I want to wish you all the best in the next chapter. Miigwetch.

As a department we've worked on providing your communities with the necessary resources and flexibility to respond to the most pressing needs during this pandemic.

Flexibility was top of mind when the Government of Canada created the Indigenous Community Support Fund (or ICSF) through its COVID-19 Economic Response Plan. Approximately $1.1 billion in support has been announced through the ICSF.

Over $110 million has been provided to First Nations in BC through a combination of direct allocations and needs-based funding. Additionally, approximately $18.6M has been provided to BC urban organizations supporting off reserve members. In total $265 Million in COVID supports was provided to First Nations and Indigenous organizations in BC last year.

On May 27, I was honoured to recognize important work done with ICSF funds by organizations in the Prince George area. The Prince George Nechako Aboriginal Employment and Training Association (PGNAETA) joined forces with the Carrier Sekani Tribal Council, Prince George Native Friendship Centre, Central Interior Native Health Society and Carrier Sekani Family Services to support Elders, children and vulnerable community members. I thank them, and the many other organizations across Canada, who are working tirelessly to meet communities' needs during these exceptional times.

Last week, I was pleased to announce an additional $760 million in funding through the ICSF. Like last time it will include a mix of direct allocations to communities and proposal based funding for organizations benefiting urban Indigenous populations.

I trust that these investments have assisted you and your nations to prevent, prepare and respond to COVID-19.

We know that Indigenous Peoples have been disproportionately affected by COVID-19 and in many cases the pandemic has brought light to other longstanding and existing challenges in our health care system—notably, the racism some people experience ~~to~~ when they reach out for care.

It is completely unacceptable that Indigenous people in BC are 75% more likely to end up in an emergency room because they don't have equal access to preventive and primary medical care – as we learned from last fall's report by Mary Ellen Turpel-Lafond – and sadly, we know racism in the healthcare system is also not unique to BC.

I think of Joyce Echaquan, the 37-year-old woman from the Atikamekw community of Manawan, who died last year in a Quebec hospital, and I think of her last hours and moments.

It is just unacceptable. No one deserves to be treated like that. There's no question we need to accelerate progress on these matters. We heard similarly horrifying statistics and stories during the second national dialogue on anti-Indigenous racism in the healthcare system, which wrapped up in late January. The clear and consistent message is that the time for talk is over – we must move forward with actions.

My department is taking a lead role, working closely with several other government departments, including the Public Health Agency of Canada, whose reports have identified racism as a public health issue.

We view three strategies as being central to eliminating anti-Indigenous racism in health care: cultural safety, recognizing Indigenous knowledge and supporting Indigenous-led health services.

We have launched an engagement process for the co-development of distinctions-based Indigenous health legislation.

This national model will build on the example set by British Columbia's First Nation Health Authority, the first province-wide health authority of its kind in Canada.

Commented [AM2]: I think its important to note how the federal gov will work from FNHA model

My department is committed to working with provincial and territorial governments, Indigenous partners and all those who work in health care to increase safety and respect for Indigenous Peoples.

Commented [AM3]: Can we add FNHA in here as well

We have also heard the critical importance of recognizing knowledge of Indigenous practices and ways of being. This means greater representation of Indigenous Peoples in the health care field, anti-racism training for health care physicians and improvements to ensure cultural humility and safety.

I want you to know that your engagement—your views, ideas and perspectives—are not only welcome, but they are needed so we can make things better in the memory of Joyce Echaquan, and for everyone else who has experienced racism in a health care setting.

Before I close today, I'd also like to speak for a moment about Jordan's Principle as I know this is an important topic for all of us.

Commented [AM4]: Jordan's Principle info has been approved by Chiara and Mahdvi

The Government is committed to addressing longstanding, unmet needs of First Nations children, and working with partners to help First Nations children thrive.

The decision as to who qualifies as a First Nations child should be left to communities and communities alone to decide.

Canada is implementing changes to Jordan's Principle to expand the eligibility criteria to include children who are recognized by their nation for the purposes of Jordan's Principle. Children who are registered or eligible to be registered under the Indian Act, and children who are ordinarily resident on-reserve, continue to be eligible.

And I would encourage parents and guardians to continue to submit requests to Jordan's Principle to obtain products, services and supports to address the unmet health, social and educational needs of First Nations children in their care.

Canada is committed to working with partners to bring forth meaningful change for current and future generations of Indigenous children. Together, we will chart a path forward that advances reconciliation and builds a stronger future for Indigenous Peoples and non-Indigenous Canadians alike.

In closing, I'd like to thank the First Nations Summit Political Executive again for inviting me to join you today and I wish you a good summit.

Thank you. Huy ch q'u (heightch ah)

Thank you [INSERT NAME] for that kind introduction. To Chief Laurie Carr and ~~the~~ Hiawatha First Nation, thank you for hosting this gathering.

Before I begin, as I am joining you from Ottawa, I would like to acknowledge that I am on the traditional and unceded territory of the Algonquin Anishinaabeg people. I also acknowledge everyone joining us today from various traditional territories.

~~I owe great thanks to the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians for welcoming me to your Annual General Assembly.~~
Thank you Grand Chief Joel Abram, and Deputy Grand Chief Stacia Loft, and Youth Co-Chair Brooke Temple, it is my privilege to listen and learn from you for welcoming me to your Annual General Assembly. It is my privilege to listen and learn from you all.

I'd also like to extend my greetings to all the communities that are part of the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians. And all of the members of your First Nations. Greetings to ~~you all~~everyone.

[SOLEMN PAUSE]

As we gather today, we cannot ignore the dark legacy of residential schools in Canada. On Friday, May 28, 2021, the buried remains of 215 innocent Indigenous children were discovered. I am deeply saddened by this devastating loss. Please know that Canada mourns with you, and all those directly and indirectly affected.

The Truth and Reconciliation Commission was established to facilitate reconciliation among former students, their families, their communities and all Canadians. Residential school survivors shared their experiences during public and private meetings – bringing to light the impacts that have been kept in the dark for so many years.

COVID-19

As difficult as it is, I'd like to shift focus and I'd like to begin by congratulating all First Nation leaders, healthcare workers and communities who have taken part in the COVID-19 vaccination effort and played such crucial roles in recent months and weeks.

In Indigenous First Nations communities, 75% of the adult population has now had one dose. I'm encouraged to see the overall number of cases dropping as the vaccination rates increase.

We're doing much better now than at other points during this crisis and in order to keep this momentum, we must remain vigilant. We must get the vaccination rates for first doses even higher and get a second dose of our work must continue to ensure second dose rates are equally high ~~vaccine to everyone who wants one.~~

Grand Chief Abram, you and the entire Association of Allied and Iroquois Indians have been extremely valued partners in these efforts.

I'm proud that Indigenous Services Canada has provided more than $15.3 million to ~~the AIAI~~ and affiliated communities since March 2020 to respond to COVID-19. ~~Working together, there have been many success stories in communities. I commend leadership for your innovative ideas to safeguard and meet the needs of your communities, reinforcing that the best solutions are those that are community-led.~~

As an example, in ~~the Oneida~~ Nation of the Thames ~~First Nation,~~ over $1.1 million was approved from the Indigenous Community Support Fund helped the community to support establish perimeter security, provide food security, cleaning supplies, and medical supplies for their residents.

Housing

And while the pandemic response efforts continue, we are still focused on our goal of making sure all Indigenous Peoples have safe, adequate and affordable housing—which for too many people, is out of reach.

With funding support from Indigenous Services Canada in the amount of $948,600, Wahta Mohawks recently completed construction of three duplex units, adding much-needed housing for the community.

And I'd like to congratulate Chief Maracle and Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte for receiving a Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) Gold certification for the ISC-funded four-plex in Deseronto. This is a tremendous achievement.

Child welfare

I'd also like to speak for a few moments on child and family services reform, ~~as this is~~ an area where Grand Chief Abram has shown leadership, dedication and vision.

For many years, Grand Chief Abram has led the way for reform of First Nations child and family services, both as the Chair of Ontario's Chiefs Committee on Social Services, and at the multi-party Technical Table on Child and Family Well-Being, where ISC is also a participant.

Canada fully supports First Nations as you actualize your vision for child and family services in a way that reflects the unique needs of children, youth, and families.

This year, $39 million in funding is available to Ontario First Nations: $15.9 million in Community-Based Prevention funding; and $23.1 million in Community Well-Being and Jurisdiction Initiative funding. This is being provided directly to 133 First Nations in Ontario for their unique needs and priorities.

Equally as important is a child's education. We know that every child growing up in Canada no matter where they live deserves a high-quality education, which is the foundation for success. Investing in education is an important part of the government's plan to build long-term economic resilience. That is why in Budget 2021 we proposed an investment of $1.2 billion over five years, and $181.8 million annually thereafter.

Canada will continue to support the needs of First Nations students on reserve by enhancing funding formulas ensuring that funding for First Nations schools remains predictable from year to year with approaches that are most suitable for your communities.

Safe drinking water

Before I close, there is another important topic I want to touch on today—safe drinking water.

As you know in March, the long-term drinking water advisory ~~on~~ affecting the Administration Building in Wahta Mohawks was lifted. ISC provided funding to support the installation of a new water treatment system to serve this facility and we continue to work together on a community-wide solution for sustainable access to clean water.

We are also working together with the Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte on a multi-phased approach to expand water service to the community and to end the five long-term drinking water advisories in effect. Construction is currently underway for Phase 3 is currently underway and to extend the water distribution system which builds on work from phases 1, 2 and the Deseronto Project for a combined total departmental investment of approximately $58.6 million.

We have lifted 107 long-term drinking water advisories since November 2015 and I assure you we will continue working with

First Nations to ensure everyone in Canada has access to safe, clean drinking water.

Again, I want to thank ~~the you~~ Grand Chief ~~Abram, Deputy Chief~~ Loft and everyone at the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians for giving me the opportunity to say a few words at your General Assembly.

I truly value our partnership and I'm honoured to be here today.

~~Thank you. Miigwetch, Aniisheik. (ah-nee-she-ik) Nia:wen. (niow wah) Yaw^'ko. (yow-go) Thank you. Merci.~~

Hi folks – Just on a bilat with Scott and I understand that you are all meeting this morning to discuss coordination of the original FSIN proposal (which included $500K or so for mental wellness supports). We'll have to figure out how this new proposal fits into this (is it much of the same) and what CIRNA is doing at their end as-well to have a coordinated approach from a federal perspective.

(English follows)

Ce message traite de sujets susceptibles de provoquer des traumatismes évoqués par des souvenirs d'abus passés. Nous reconnaissons que certains employés peuvent ne pas vouloir continuer à lire pour minimiser le risque associé au déclenchement de ces traumatismes.

Chers collègues,

C'est avec beaucoup de tristesse que nous avons appris la découverte de 215 corps d'enfants sur le site d'un ancien pensionnat à Kamloops, en Colombie-Britannique.

Nos pensées vont aujourd'hui vers la Première Nation Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc, ainsi que toutes les personnes touchées directement ou indirectement par cette découverte macabre et par l'héritage du système des pensionnats.

Cela nous rappelle un chapitre très sombre de notre histoire. Mais nous devons continuer à travailler avec les survivants et les familles des victimes afin de rebâtir une relation basée sur la reconnaissance de leurs droits, le respect, la collaboration et la confiance. Nos ministères se sont adressés à des partenaires, comme l'Autorité sanitaire des Premières Nations, pour offrir toute l'aide qu'ils peuvent fournir.

Cette affaire est loin d'être qu'un événement purement historique. Plusieurs de ces enfants enterrés ont possiblement des parents, des frères ou sœurs, des nièces, des neveux et d'autres membres de leurs familles qui sont toujours vivants aujourd'hui et qui se demanderont si leurs êtres chers sont parmi ceux et celles qui ont été trouvés. Plusieurs des aspects de ces événements continueront d'être traumatisants, loin dans le futur.

Si vous avez besoin de soutien psychologique, ou si vous connaissez quelqu'un qui en aurait besoin, différentes ressources sont offertes, dont la ligne téléphonique d'aide aux employés, au 1-800-268-7708 (pour malentendants - ATS au 1-800-567-5803). This email deals with topics that may cause trauma invoked by memories of past abuse. We recognize that some employees may not want to read on to minimize the risk associated with triggering.

Dear colleagues,

It was with great sadness that we learned of the discovery of 215 children's bodies at the site of a former residential school in Kamloops, British Columbia.

Our thoughts today are with the Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc First Nation and all those directly and indirectly affected by this unsettling discovery and by the legacy of the residential school system.

This reminds us of a very dark chapter in our history, but we must continue to work with survivors and the families of those lost to rebuild a relationship based on recognition of their rights, respect, collaboration and trust. Our departments have reached out to partners, such as the First Nations Health Authority, to offer any assistance they can.

This is of course much more than a historical issue. Many of those 215 buried children may have parents, siblings, nieces, nephews and other family members still living today who may have no knowledge of what happened to their loved ones and who will be asking themselves if they are among those who have been discovered. Many aspects of these traumatic events remain very real today and will continue to do so well into the future.

If you need support—or know someone who does—different resources are available to you through the Employee Assistance Program, which you can reach by calling 1-800-268-7708 (or TTY for people with hearing impairments at 1-800-567-5803). Kwe Kwe, Tansi, Unnusakkt, Good morning, Bonjour.

I would like to acknowledge that I am on the traditional and unceded territory of the Algonquin Anishinaabeg people.

I want to take a moment to share my grief and sadness about the news last week of the discovery of 215 children buried at the site of the former Kamloops Indian Residential School. I had the opportunity to speak with Kukpi7 Casimir, to offer her the full support of our department. Her community, surrounding communities and all of us honour and mourn the loss of these innocent children.

Now, on to other matters.

~~Today~~ I'll start by giving you an overview of the numbers for vaccinations. As of ~~May 26~~XX, we are aware of ~~687~~XX Indigenous communities with vaccinations underway. A total of ~~484,560~~XX doses have been administered, from that ~~167,818~~XX are second doses. The number of vaccinations is steadily increasing, which shows that the hard work of so many across the country is paying off.

Commented [CC1]: Will update Tuesday night

As far as the number of cases, as of XX May 27, in First Nations communities on reserve, we're aware of 688 X active cases, ~~which thankfully is a decrease from last week.~~ This brings us to a total of 29,445 XX confirmed positive COVID-19 cases. There are 27,656 XX recovered cases and tragically, 336 XX deaths.

[Pause]

We know that this pandemic has had a devastating impact on Indigenous Peoples across the country. And that is why our government is reopening the Indigenous Community Support Fund (ICSF).

As part of Budget 2021, we proposed an additional $760.8 million in funding for the program. Throughout these difficult days, Indigenous leaders in communities and cities have worked tirelessly to keep First Nations, Inuit and Métis people safe and secure.

This funding will give leaders and organizations the flexibility to develop and implement solutions that protect the health, safety and well-being of Indigenous Peoples. Examples of ways that communities have used the funding in the past include promoting food security, improving mental health services and distributing emergency equipment.

And very pleased that the program has reopened, because I know the money will be well spent and have a positive impact. I invite interested parties to learn more about the program and to apply.

Now let's turn to a look at what's going on across Canada.

In British Columbia, Dr. Bonnie Henry announced that they have reduced the wait time between vaccinations to eight weeks. All BC residents will be able to get their vaccination by the end of the summer, which is great news.

And the province is working with the First Nations Health Authority to get the second dose of vaccines to remote and Indigenous communities. They will be using a similar system as they used for the first dose a "whole of community" approach, visiting community by community to ~~offer~~administer the vaccine to eligible residents.

In Ontario, there's good progress, health officials have also shortened the waiting time between first and second doses. This is accelerating the anticipated pace of the vaccine rollout. And this past Monday, teams began to visit 31 fly-in First Nations communities, offering vaccines to youth.

In Manitoba, the province continues to deal with a difficult situation. Health authorities are working to control the third wave. Indigenous communities are showing great leadership, with Cross Lake Norway House and Island Lake all [REDACTED] vaccination rates for the first dose among adults. [REDACTED]

Commented [BC4]: TW: [REDACTED]

In Alberta, a vaccination clinic led by the Métis Nation of Alberta (MNA) has been a great success. The pop-up clinic at MacDonald Island Park was especially effective in reaching communities that may have been hesitant about receiving a vaccine.

Reagan Bartell, who is the health director for the MNA, said that some Métis people told her they decided to get vaccinated after they found out the clinic was run by an Indigenous organization. The clinic will be traveling across the province for the summer.

Finally, last week, the governments of Nova Scotia as well as New Brunswick opened up the eligibility for vaccines to those 12 and older.

Overall, case counts are going down and vaccinations are increasing. This is tremendous news. But as we have seen in recent weeks, flare-ups can happen unexpectedly.

That is why it is so critical, so very important, to not let up until we get the job done and get that second dose of vaccine to those who need it. It's been a marathon and we can see the finish line in the near distance. But we can't stop until we've made it the whole way.

I'm very proud to have had the opportunity to work along with Indigenous leaders as well as healthcare officials, responding to this enormous challenge. It's been an honour to play a small role in helping to protect Indigenous communities.

As always, I remind everyone to please keep on following the advice of healthcare experts. Please limit contact with people outside of your immediate family. When you're out in public, it's essential to wear a mask. And don't forget to wash your hands frequently.

Meegwetch. Nakummek. Marci. Thank you. Merci.

LED Contaminated Sites (provided by LED)

- The LED contaminated sites team is working with regions to identify past, ongoing and planned contaminated sites projects associated with residential school grounds. The Indian Residential School Settlement Agreement has identified 139 residential schools, although this does not represent the full number of residential schools that operated in Canada.
- Many of the residential schools are located on reserve land and Canada is responsible for the environmental management of these lands. The contaminated sites teams across Canada work in partnership with Indigenous leadership on projects on reserve, and ISC endeavors to work with respect and sensitivity on projects in areas of former residential schools.
- In the past, Nations have identified areas to avoid due to the potential for encountering remains. Also, if areas planned for investigation or remediation have the potential for encountering archaeological artifacts, ISC has funded an archaeological monitor, preferably a trained Indigenous employee.
- All planned intrusive works on reserves which formerly housed residential schools will be put on hold pending additional engagement and planning with communities. Although application of geophysics was successful in identifying remains at Kamloops IR, ISC recognized that this technique may not be effective at every location and may not be the approach of choice of every affected community.

Hi all –

Julien is correct that because the FNHA has assumed control over the full suite of mental wellness programming, the FNHA would normally provide the supports needed themselves (with the exception of JP). If the supports needed are beyond what the FNHA can handle, then the Framework Agreement contained the provision below.

8.2 Unforeseen circumstances

(1) In the event of an unforeseen circumstance of a health emergency or natural disaster which would have a significant capacity or financial impact on the FNHA, Canada and British Columbia shall, with the FNHA, jointly assess the impact and required measures to address the situation. Any agreement to provide new funding or other assistance to the FNHA will be made by the Parties in writing.

Important to note that the model is based on tripartite discussion and collaborative action. The model is also based on better integration and coordination of services with the province so on the reference to surge capacity, my advice would be to encourage a tripartite discussion to see whether those surge supports can be provided by the province. Of note is that BC has both a Ministry of Health and a Ministry of Mental Health and Addictions. FNIHB has also vacated the direct program and service delivery space in BC (again with the exception of JP) so re-entering it would run counter to the model.

Completely agree with Dr. Wong on coordinating messaging.

Hi Patrick,

Looking to Dr. Wong and Helen to confirm but since the FNHA is responsible for our full suite of MW programs including NIHB, we remain available to support the FNHA as needed should they require surge capacity to deliver services within their mandate.

Yes, Jordan's Principle group request can be submitted by the community to seek additional funding to meet the unmet needs of children and youth under the age of majority and fill service gaps. Families can also submit individual requests to meet unmet health, social or education needs. We can also engage with other federal departments or national organizations as needed.

Hope this helps as an immediate response.

Good afternoon,

I am reaching out to you today with some sorrowful news coming from Tk'emlups First Nations in the Interior Region. The community recently completed a search for bodies surrounding Kamloops Indian Residential School. They discovered 215 bodies. The community is releasing this information at 5pm today.

Immediate supports for Tk'emlups have been secured through the regional team and members have been made aware of additional supports available through KUU-US Crisis Line, Tsow-Tun-Le-Lum Society and the Indian Residential Schools Survivors Society.

Discoveries like this have the potential to trigger First Nations people across the province. We look to our partnerships to ensure that appropriate supports are available in the event that communities require them.

Please do not hesitate to reach out to discuss potential impacts.

In Health and Wellness,
Richard

Many thanks, Dr. Wong.

It seems that our emails crossed in my response to Dr. Adams.

I've since reflected the changes you had made in a version that was edited by the Speech team to reduce the mentions of GoC investments/achievements.

Should there be no additional immediate concerns, I'll forward this version to ADMO for urgent sign off.

Many thanks in advance from your prompt responses on this urgent request.

The Honourable Marc Miller

Minister of Indigenous Services on

Mental Health and Wellness Supports Available to Indigenous Peoples

for the emergency debate in the House of Commons

May 31, 2021

Check on delivery

985 words / 8 minutes + Minister anecdote/reflections

Thank you Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, this weekend—like many Canadians—I watched the powerful images of a country in mourning.

215 pairs of tiny shoes left on the steps of the Vancouver Art Gallery and at the Forks in Winnipeg. At the entrances of churches in Kahnawake, Eskasoni, and everywhere in between. Sacred fires burning in honour of all those who were lost.

Beautiful and devastating tributes to children who never went home to the families they were stolen from... and who will never be forgotten by their relatives and communities.

I would like to thank everyone who contacted me over the past few days to share their stories, which were deeply personal, painful and haunting.

I am heartbroken for you: the Survivors, families and communities who are on your healing journeys.

Many of you shared with me that you were on path to mental wellness and you are now being re-traumatized, reliving the experiences you have tried so hard to move on from.

Can Minister Miller please add an anonymous anecdote here of someone who reached out to him over the past few days that had a profound impact on him personally?

I am thinking about the children and families who have suffered intergenerational trauma and are now facing a huge setback in their own healing.

The Government of Canada is grieving with you—I am grieving with you. We are profoundly saddened by this discovery and our thoughts are with Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc First Nation, as well as with all Indigenous communities across Canada.

To all the Survivors, I invite and urge you to call the National Indian Residential School Crisis Line. This line has been set up to provide emotional and crisis referral services to former residential school students. It's available 24 hours a day at 1-866-925-4419.

And all Indigenous Peoples can access the Hope for Wellness Help Line. You can chat with a counsellor on their website, at triple-w dot Hope for Wellness dot ca, or by phoning 1-855-242-3310.

To my colleagues in the federal government who are First Nations, Inuit and Métis, the Employee Assistance Program is also available.

The Government of Canada recognizes the scope and seriousness of the health and mental health challenges facing First Nations and Inuit, including the tragic loss of life through suicide.

Our Government is here to support. As an example, the Indian Residential Schools Resolution Health Support Program will continue to be available until 2024.

The program provides access to mental health counselling and emotional and cultural support services to former students of Indian Residential Schools and their family members.

The program offers access to Elders, traditional healers, and other community-based cultural supports. It also offers emotional supports, professional mental health counselling, and help with the cost of transportation to access services. These services are available to eligible individuals regardless of their Indigenous status or where they live.

We recognize there will be an ongoing need for access to mental wellness supports and services relating to childhood and intergenerational trauma and we will continue to work with partners and communities.

Former students of Indian Residential Schools and their family members can also count on the support of over 603 multi-disciplinary mental wellness community-led teams that provide culturally safe and competent mental health services and clinical supports to 344 First Nations and Inuit communities.

There is also a network of 45 substance use treatment centres, as well as services in ~~the majority of~~ First Nations and Inuit communities, to help reduce and prevent problematic drug and alcohol use.

And in the context of the COVID-19 pandemic, the Government of Canada is providing additional support so Indigenous communities can adapt and expand mental wellness services.

We recently proposed to provide $597.6M over three years for a distinctions-based mental health and wellness strategy with First Nations, Inuit, and the Métis Nation that include continuing supports for former residential school students and their families.

This will build on existing strengths, help address gaps and be responsive to current, emerging and future needs.

All of these efforts are part of our work to fully implement the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's 94 Calls to Action.

These initiatives are making a difference in Indigenous communities.

For example, since the Hope for Wellness Help Line began in October 2016, it has received 58,939 calls and 9,502 chats. Each of these contacts meant that someone wasn't alone with their negative thoughts and worries.

But we recognize we still have much work to do on our shared journey toward healing. And much of that work rests with each of us—as individuals.

Every Canadian is responsible to learn about—and understand—this darkest chapter in our country's history.

I encourage all Canadians to read the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada's Final Report and its Calls to Action. Please talk to your children about the Residential Schools.

Help them understand what happened, and the lasting effects it has today.

And please understand that many Indigenous People are traumatized and grieving right now. While this may not be the right time to ask them questions about their perspectives and personal experiences, there are a lot of excellent resources available online to help you inform yourself—starting with the TRC Report.

Now, more than ever, we need to support our friends and coworkers who are First Nations, Inuit and Métis, many of whom are being re-traumatized by the news cycle, and facing a setback in their personal healing.

If you are struggling right now, please know you are not alone.

Please reach out and talk to someone—the 24/7 National Indian Residential School Crisis Line, Hope for Wellness, or an Elder, family member or friend.

Thank you.

Terry – further to our discussion on this, the following is material that Jamie sent me the other week that outlines our various health supports (that may be appropriate to highlight as-well for the purpose of the response)....Jamie and Dr. Wong could advise.

- FNIHB has been involved in supporting access to mental wellness services since the 1970s, beginning with substance use treatment
- Our investment has gradually expanded over subsequent decades as new issues of concern have arisen.
- The majority of funding and funding decisions reside with communities and partners.

Mental Wellness Program

- Approximate annual investment of $450M – only ~$10M resides in national office; the remainder flows to communities through regions and regional partnership/governance tables.
- Much of this funding goes to communities to use to respond to their unique needs and priorities.

We do support a number of things that can be leveraged when responding to crisis:

- We fund 63 local multidisciplinary mental wellness teams (that cover 344 communities across Canada)
 - We fund a network of 45 treatment centres across the country, including adult, youth, and family treatment models
 - We fund wraparound services at 68 opioid agonist therapy sites
 - We fund 135 organizations that employ over 500 cultural and emotional support workers located in communities (responding to Indian Residential School, Indian Day School, and MMIWG needs)
 - We have a list (same list as NIHB) of social workers and psychologist (100s per region) who operate on a fee-for-service basis (responding to Indian Residential School, Indian Day School, and MMIWG needs).
 - Medical Transportation funding to fly clients out of community to see registered providers, or to fly registered providers into community to see clients
 - We have the Hope for Wellness Help Line, 24/7 in English and French and upon request in Cree, Ojibway, and Inuktitut.
- ISC's Mental Wellness Program has permanent and ongoing funding.
 - Since 2016, significant funding has been announced:
 - 2016 Interim Measures - $69M over three years for community-based mental wellness teams, implementing the National Inuit Suicide Prevention Strategy, and the Hope for Wellness Help Line
 - B2017 - $118M over five years and ongoing to support the Youth Hope Fund and to continue Interim Measures
 - B2017 - $15M over five years and ongoing to support harm reduction measures as part of the Canada Drugs and Substances Strategy
 - B2018 - $200M over five years and ongoing for substance use prevention and treatment initiatives, including additional wraparound services at OAT sites, on the land activities, and renovations at over 20 treatment centres.
 - B2018 - $248M over three years to renew health support services for former students of Indian Residential Schools
 - 2018 - $20M over three years for health supports for those affected by the issue of Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls
 - B2019 - $50M over 10 years and ongoing to support implementation of the National Inuit Suicide Prevention Strategy
 - 2020 - $82M to support mental wellness surge and adaptations in response to the COVID 19 pandemic
 - B2021 - $597M to renew funding for survivors of Indian Residential Schools and Federal Indian Day Schools and their families, and those affected by the issue of Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls, and to response to other community needs and priorities.

How have services changed in light of the pandemic?

- Communities and partners are reporting that demands for services have increased under the pandemic. Data from some regions have highlighted a devastating surge in opioids overdoses.
- ISC is working with regions and partners to respond to these new rising demands and needs.
- Communities and service providers have demonstrated incredible innovation and resilience to adapt and ensure that services continue to be available while respecting local pandemic health guidelines.
- Many services have become virtual, with communities indicating that new clients are being reached that had not previously accessed services.

NIHB

- Has the Mental Health Counselling Benefit - social workers and psychologist (100s per region) who operate on a fee-for-service basis
- Medical Transportation funding to fly clients out of community to see registered providers, or to fly registered providers into community to see clients
- Has CA $ for traditional healing, but it's only $6M annually so access remains a major challenge

Mental Health Benefits through the Non-Insured Health Benefits Program (NIHB Approved Messaging)

- The Non-Insured Health Benefits Program provides registered First Nations and recognized Inuit ("eligible clients") with coverage for a range of medically necessary health benefits when these benefits are not otherwise covered through other public or private health insurance plans or social programs. Program benefits provided to eligible clients include mental health counselling benefits provided by a legislated regulated provider such as a Registered Psychologist or social worker.
- Coverage is provided for up to 22 hours of counselling on a fee-for-service basis (e.g. individual, family, or group counselling). To facilitate timely access to services and to allow for an assessment, the first 2 hours do not require prior approval.
- Non-Insured Health Benefit mental health counselling benefit expenditures were approximately $73.6M in 2020/21, representing growth of about 34% over the previous year. Approximately 37% of these expenditures are through Contribution Agreements, enabling communities themselves to manage these benefits. About 6000 clients access fee-for-service MHC benefits each month.
- Indigenous Services Canada also provides several services along the drug misuse continuum. Through the Non-Insured Health Benefits (NIHB) Program, coverage is provided to registered First Nations and recognized Inuit for:
 - Methadone, buprenorphine/naloxone (i.e. Suboxone and generics), long-acting buprenorphine (Sublocade), buprenorphine implant (Probuphine), slow release morphine and injectable opioid agonist treatment (iOAT) for the treatment of opioid use disorder. To promote client safety, clients receiving these treatments are enrolled in the Client Safety Program.
 - Naloxone, used to treat overdoses, both Injection and nasal spray (Narcan);
 - Medical transportation benefits for clients to access supervised treatment for opioid use disorder (e.g. methadone, Suboxone). The client's ongoing need for travel is reviewed every six months
- In addition to coverage provided under the NIHB Program, in facilities where ISC provides primary care services in First Nations communities, naloxone injection is available for administration by health care professionals to reverse the effects of the overdose. There is also a limited supply of naloxone nasal spray (Narcan) in Nursing Stations that is available to community members at no charge. Injectable naloxone is listed in the Branch's Nursing Station Formulary as a "must stock" medication.

If pressed re investments in MHC:

- Budget 2017 provided an additional $86M over five years to expand the Non-Insured Health Benefit mental health counselling benefit to provide coverage of counselling beyond that required following a crisis, and to include, for the first time, the services of traditional healers to address mental health needs (the latter service is provided by community based organizations).
- Budget 2021 invested $774.6 million over five years, beginning in 2021-22, to ensure continued high-quality care through the Non-Insured Health Benefits Program, which supports First Nations and Inuit people with medically necessary services not otherwise covered, such as mental health services, medical travel, medications, and more.

Jordan's Principle

- Mental Wellness remains on of the top expenses for both individual and group requests (Since April 1, 2018, Jordan's Principle has spent $175.8M on Suicide Prevention, and $358.3M on all Mental Wellness initiatives)
- Includes coverage for things outside of what NIHB or MWP cover (private specialized treatment)

Subject: FW: URGENT_DM Question: progress report stemming from NDP Opp Day motion

Hello,

Here is an update from the MW team:

The Indian Residential Schools Resolution Health Support Program (IRS RHSP) was established as part of fulfilling the 2006 IRS Settlement Agreement, with the purpose of providing support services to former students of Indian Residential Schools and their families involved in the Settlement Agreement activities. The Program has been renewed several times, most recently for an additional three years in Budget 2021 with an annual investment of $88M, and funding available until March 31, 2024. Eligible former students and their families have been able to access emotional, cultural, and mental health supports throughout all phases of the Settlement Agreement, regardless of place of residence. The Program provides access to community-based cultural and emotional health support services provided by over trained and culturally competent Indigenous health workers, and access to mental health counselling provided by licensed and registered psychologists or social workers, as well as medical transportation to access these services.

Utilization rates are high, with over 120,000 individuals having over 700,000 emotional and cultural support interactions and nearly 13,000 individuals having over 88,000 mental health counselling sessions in 2018/19 (the last year with complete data).

I think this responds to the motion in terms of IRS support. Let me know if you think further details would be needed from the program.

We have a meeting later today to discuss the legal question, as you know.

Thanks,

Terry

I just wanted to flag the DM's initial comments below in terms of what she would like the progress report to include for section (a). DM would like to ensure that the context includes recent comments from the PM and the Minister on what we are fighting and signaling our willingness to mediate. Hope this makes sense.

She has also asked for an update on item d that Terry is already working on.

Subject: progress report stemming from NDP Opp Day motion

Hi DMO colleagues,

The NDP Opp Day motion which was debated yesterday in the House contains a requirement for progress report on the four elements on the motion to be tabled within 10 days. We confirmed with a procedural clerk, who conferred with colleagues, and they all said the motion would be read as calendar days because it didn't specify sitting days. Therefore if the motion is adopted on Monday, the deadline would be June 17 and, if not tabled, a question of privilege could be raised which, most likely, would be referred to committee to determine a course of action.

Of the motion, parts (a) and (d) are ISC's, and (b) and (c) are CIRNAC's. I have pasted the full text of the motion below as reference.

The vote on the motion will be on Monday and we are expecting the motion to pass, given statements made by members during debate. Therefore, we will be tasking sectors to develop content today. I am proposing we aim to get a draft for DM approval by Friday, June 11, then to MINOs by Tuesday, June 15 COB.

Please let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

June 1, 2021 — Mr. Julian (New Westminster—Burnaby) — That, given that,

- (i) the discovery of the grave of 215 children at Kamloops Indian Residential School has led to an outpouring of grief and anger across Canada,
- (ii) the vast majority of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's calls to action remain uncompleted, despite the clear path to justice and reconciliation that the Commission provides,
- (iii) survivors, families and nations are demanding concrete action to advance real reconciliation, as opposed to just more words and symbolic gestures,

the House call on the government to:

- (a) cease its belligerent and litigious approach to justice for Indigenous children by immediately dropping its appeal before the Federal Court in file numbers T-1621-19 (compensation) and T-1559-20 (Jordan's Principle for non-status First Nations kids recognized by their nations) and to recognize the government's legal obligation to fully comply with Canadian Human Rights Tribunal orders in this regard;
- (b) agree to sit down with the St. Anne's residential school survivors organization Peetabeck Keway Keykaywin Association to find a just solution to the fact that survivors' access to justice has been denied as a consequence of the actions of government lawyers in suppressing evidence at the Independent Assessment Process;
- (c) accelerate the implementation of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's calls to action, including by providing immediate funding for further investigation into the deaths and disappearances of children at residential schools in compliance with calls to action 71 to 76;
- (d) provide survivors, their families, and their communities with appropriate resources to assist with the emotional, physical, spiritual, mental, and cultural trauma resulting from residential schools; and
- (e) within 10 days, table a progress report on actions taken in compliance with paragraphs (a) through (d) of the present motion, and that this report be deemed to have been referred to the Standing Committee on Indigenous and Northern Affairs for consideration upon tabling.

Good Morning Jamie

Hope you are doing well. Sending a quick update on the mental health supports in BC.

The discovery of the mass grave on Tk'emlups te Secwepemc territory has affected all Indigenous communities across the province and Canada. This finding touches each of us and many in our communities are triggered and grieving from this discovery that validates what residential school survivors have been saying for generations. It is also recognized that there is a lot of fatigue in our bodies and communities around the atrocities committed at residential schools and the ongoing stress of the pandemic, the toxic drug crisis, and our ongoing work in health and wellness.

We are holding debriefing sessions in regions, with the Health Directors, front line workers and Leadership.

- FNHA gathered staff from across BC, approximately 500+ attended, focussed on importance of self care. Cultural Support Workers, George Jeffrey and Freddy Johnson, and FNHC Chair, FNHA Board Chair, CEO, HR VP were part of the speakers panel. Staff were provided a list of resources available to all.

- The northern region held gathering of their front line staff to discuss the challenges and what may present itself to leadership and staff as a result of last weeks' announcement; and to share with leadership and staff the importance of their own self-care and provide examples of ways that they can take good care of their spirits as they provide the important support and work to their communities.

- Other sessions are scheduled next week.

- 6 Health and cultural supports deployed to Tk'emlups last weekend as requested by community

- Indian Residential School Survivors Society (IRSSS) has moved operations from 8:00 to 5:00 (Monday to Friday) to 24/7 effective June 4th

- The IRS/MMIWG/IDS health and cultural workers have started to provide in person health and cultural supports. Many requests received from communities across BC for in person support. Virtual support continues to be provided.

- The two toll free lines KU-US and IRSSS are receiving calls from across the country. Quite a few of the calls are from non-indigenous persons, young people and many survivors that are being re-triggered from the findings of the 215 children buried in mass graves.

- Approximately 300 people gathered at Fraser Lake to remember the 215 children. Health and cultural supports deployed to support the participants.

- FNHB is working on expediting the prior approvals for the counselling support to deal with triggers and crisis from the Tk'emlups.

- the Mental Health and Wellness Manager from Interior Region who is also a member of Tk'emlups met with Brenda Restoule and me last Friday. This was most helpful. Need for debriefing, more indigenous clinicians and a road map for mental health and wellness were identified. Follow-up call with Brenda requested. We are looking to arrange this for next week.

The two BC crisis lines will continue to support all callers and provide the immediate support, grounding, etc. What would be helpful is for us to develop a seamless process for follow-up for client calls from outside BC. I have flagged this to Gina for the call she is arranging for all IRS regional leads.

That's it for now.

Good Morning Jamie

I was multi-tasking and had my response sitting in the draft box.

We don't have an overall plan yet; however we have received requests for:

Kamloops Residential Schools (old)

- deployment of cultural supports (10) to support local leadership, residential school survivors, families and the hundreds (approx 600+) of survivors and families from across BC that are showing up at the old Kamloops IRS on the weekend and will likely continue to arrive (Actioned).
- 2 full time and 2 part-time clinical counsellors for the interior region to respond to numerous requests from local communities near the old Kamloops Indian Residential School (in progress)

- FNHA will distribute a communication to providers requesting interest in (4) positions with the Mental Health and Wellness team in the Interior Region. The positions will follow the criteria below, and will be funded through the IRS program.

4 counsellors – Part time or Full time

- 4 counsellors – Part time or Full time
 - Funded by IRS program, contract with MHW team
 - Under professional association or regulatory body (met by HB eligibility criteria)
 - Covered by liability insurance (met by HB eligibility criteria)
 - Location: Interior Region
 - Services Offered:
 - In person
 - Telehealth
 - Virtual
 - Expertise in complex trauma, and grief and loss required
 - Expertise with Children and Youth an asset

- FNHB will share out communication to providers about the tragic news from Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc, to bring awareness and highlight a possible increase in calls from clients needing timely support

- FNHB has reached out to providers in the Interior region to confirm their availability for new clients and will be providing an updated list for distribution

- We are receiving requests from our other BC regions for additional cultural supports (waiting further details)
- Our 2 IRS CA Holders, Tsow Ten Le Lum and IRSSS as well as our KU-US crisis line have been requested to provide support 7 days per week including evenings (will need to increase workforce for relief and additional hours of operation). The contact information for these organizations have been posted nationally as contact numbers, resulting in huge increase in calls in just over the weekend.
- The two CA Holders and the KU-US Crisis line are getting calls across Canada. We will respond to all calls and deal with immediate concern of clients calling; however we will need to set up protocols with other regions to refer the callers back to their respective regions for follow-up. (In progress)
- I will continue to monitor the capacity
- I received 19 calls over the weekend plus emails from Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba, Atlantic, and BC. Apparently my contact information was sent out in Instagram. I am trying to get this pulled as I am inundated with requests and I have responded to all calls as the individuals may be in crisis. Most of these callers are requesting counselling support and have provided them the regional contact information.

I will provide further updates.

Thanks

I can't imagine how difficult and busy things are right now. Richard Jock emailed Valerie Gideon asking about a potential need for resources to support an EOC structure to support the community and surrounding communities. Are you aware of this?

I have been asked to look into what support we may be able to provide. I assume that EOC stands for "emergency operations centre" but do you have a sense of whether the FNHA might be looking for FNIHBers to 'work' in the EOC, or if the need is funding for the FNHA to stand up the EOC, or if what is potentially being sought is mental wellness workers from other regions to support the community(-ies)?

Thanks,

Approved.

And the Minister will have these particular 6 Calls to Action in his back pocket (#71-76), right? They have to do with missing children and burial information:

<https://www.rcaanc-cirnac.gc.ca/eng/1524504992259/1557512149981>

Here they are cut and pasted:

71. We call upon all chief coroners and provincial vital statistics agencies that have not provided to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada their records on the deaths of Aboriginal children in the care of residential school authorities to make these documents available to the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation.
72. We call upon the federal government to allocate sufficient resources to the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation to allow it to develop and maintain the National Residential School Student Death Register established by the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada.
73. We call upon the federal government to work with churches, Aboriginal communities, and former residential school students to establish and maintain an online registry of residential school cemeteries, including, where possible, plot maps showing the location of deceased residential school children.
74. We call upon the federal government to work with the churches and Aboriginal community leaders to inform the families of children who died at residential schools of the child's burial location, and to respond to families' wishes for appropriate commemoration ceremonies and markers, and reburial in home communities where requested.
75. We call upon the federal government to work with provincial, territorial, and municipal governments, churches, Aboriginal communities, former residential school students, and current landowners to develop and implement strategies and procedures for the ongoing identification, documentation, maintenance, commemoration, and protection of residential school cemeteries or other sites at which residential school children were buried. This is to include the provision of appropriate memorial ceremonies and commemorative markers to honour the deceased children.
76. We call upon the parties engaged in the work of documenting, maintaining, commemorating, and protecting residential school cemeteries to adopt strategies in accordance with the following principles:
 - i. The Aboriginal community most affected shall lead the development of such strategies.
 - ii. Information shall be sought from residential school Survivors and other Knowledge Keepers in the development of such strategies.
 - iii. Aboriginal protocols shall be respected before any potentially invasive technical inspection and investigation of a cemetery site.

And, I'm assuming, he has updates on actions to date in these areas?

Hello,

Please find attached an urgent speech for OPPH approval related tonight's emergency debate.

Please provide any comments before 6pm as I'll be sending to ADMO for approval at that time; the Minister's office has asked for this by 7pm.

Note that I was not able to get input from Jamie Bryan, who has now been FYId on this.

Apologies for the short notice and tight turnaround,

Kamloops tragedy must not divert attention from correcting inequalities of the present

19:25 EST – The Toronto Star
06/02/2021

By: Perry Bellegarde

The discovery of as many as 215 bodies in an unmarked grave near the site of a former "Indian" residential school in Kamloops might have come as a surprise to many Canadians, but not to most First Nations. Our people have been telling of these horrors for decades. The only difference today is now we're being believed because the proof is undeniable.

Another fact that is undeniable is that there were more than 130 of these Indian Residential Schools scattered across Canada. Most were run by the Roman Catholics or Anglicans, and all were funded by and under the supervision of the federal government.

One common thread is a tragic and painful legacy of hundreds of thousands of stolen children who were victims of neglect, abuse and, as we see in Kamloops, death. Another is that when children died, many of their deaths went unreported and unrecorded. Families were simply told their children had run away, but most parents knew what had happened. Fellow students knew what happened. And it's a very safe bet that church and government officials knew what happened too. That they were not believed or, worse, silenced only deepens the tragedy of this dark era in Canadian history.

Last week's discovery shines a bit of light into that darkness. The families of the Tk'emlups te Secwépemc First Nation now deserve to know what happened - who were these children, when and how did they die? - and they'll need time and support to hold ceremony and then properly bury their ancestors. And we can hope the federal government will now take seriously efforts to locate other mass graves near residential schools that our people have been told about for generations. Maybe then, others who have tried to bring about justice will be believed, too.

But the tragedies of the past must not divert our attention from correcting the inequality that continues to plague the relationship between Canada and Indigenous peoples. The disparity in wealth and opportunity that exists in Canada is among the worst in the world. Our young people on reserves struggle to get a quality education and they commit suicide at rates far above the national average.

With the residential schools, the government knew it had a problem and opted to do nothing. Today, First Nations and Indigenous peoples still experience challenges that root back directly to that genocidal policy, and yet governments in Canada are still not doing all they can do for our children.

Though the residential schools are gone, First Nations children continue to be taken from their families and communities at unconscionable rates and stuck in foster care with little or no due process. This is the worst kind of systemic discrimination which always assumes the non-First-Nations way is the only correct way. Even after the actions of the federal government were found to be discriminatory by the Canadian Human Rights Tribunal in 2016, government lawyers have kept up a painful and fruitless legal challenge rather than accept the simple truth that they are in the wrong.

This week I spoke with Prime Minister Justin Trudeau about the growing anger among Canadians for how First Nations were treated in the last century. I asked him directly to drop the legal challenges to the Canadian Human Rights Tribunal's ruling, adding that it perpetuates the paternalistic and systemic racism that has plagued Canada since Confederation. I also urged Mr. Trudeau to implement the remaining calls to action from the Truth and Reconciliation Commissions' final report that deal with resolving the painful aftermath of the Indian Residential Schools.

I also called on senators to pass Bill C-15, the enabling legislation behind the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. The graves in Kamloops should be a sobering reminder that Indigenous rights need to be protected in law.

From a young age, Elders told me of the Seven Sacred Teachings: Truth, Honesty, Love, Respect, Courage, Wisdom and Humility. These have always served me well. I was also taught that Anger isn't one of them. But faced with the horror and heartbreak that so many of us feel, and the empathy we have for the thousands of families who lost their children to a cruel and callous system, perhaps there's one more thing we can demand of ourselves:

Action.

COVID-19 News Conference

Ottawa, ON

Kwe Kwe, Tansi, Unnusakkt, Good morning, Bonjour.

I would like to acknowledge that I am on the traditional and unceded territory of the Algonquin Anishinaabeg people.

I want to take a moment to share my grief and sadness about the news last week of the discovery of 215 children buried at the site of the former Kamloops Indian Residential School. I had the opportunity to speak with Kukpi7 Casimir, to offer her the full support of our department. Her community, surrounding communities and all of us honour and mourn the loss of these innocent children.

To all the Survivors, I invite and urge you to call the National Indian Residential School Crisis Line. It's available to provide emotional and crisis referral services to former residential school students. You can call 24 hours a day at 1-866-925-4419.

triple-w dot Hope for Wellness dot ca, or by phoning 1-855-242-3310.

Understanding the truth of this dark chapter of our history and the pain it has caused reinforces the urgent need and responsibility that this government has to work towards reconciliation with Indigenous Peoples.

Turning now to the area of focus of this news conference—our response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

I'll start by giving you an overview of the numbers for vaccinations. As of XX, we are aware of XX Indigenous communities with vaccinations underway. A total of XX doses have been administered, from that XX are second doses. The number of vaccinations is steadily increasing, which shows that the hard work of so many across the country is paying off.

As far as the number of cases, as of XX, in First Nations communities on reserve, we're aware of X active cases. This brings us to a total of XX confirmed positive COVID-19 cases.

There are XX recovered cases and tragically, XX deaths.

[Pause]

We know that this pandemic has had a devastating impact on Indigenous Peoples across the country. And that is why our government continues to invest in the Indigenous Community Support Fund (ICSF).

As part of Budget 2021, we proposed an additional $760.8 million in funding for the initiative. Throughout these difficult days, Indigenous leaders in communities and urban areas have worked tirelessly to keep First Nations, Inuit and Métis people safe and secure.

This funding will give leaders and organizations the flexibility needed to continue developing and implementing solutions that protect the health, safety and well-being of Indigenous Peoples. Examples of ways that communities have used the funding in the past include promoting food security, improving mental health services and distributing emergency equipment.

Commented [CC2]:

Commented [CC3]: Will update Tuesday night

I am very pleased that the initiative is delivering funds directly to communities this week and currently accepting requests for needs-based support. These requests can be submitted by communities and organizations, including those supporting First Nations living off-reserve and urban Indigenous populations. I know the money will be well spent and have a positive impact. I invite interested parties to learn more about the program and submit requests today.

Now let's turn to a look at what's going on across Canada.

In British Columbia, Dr. Bonnie Henry announced that they have reduced the wait time between vaccinations to eight weeks. All BC residents will be able to get their vaccination by the end of the summer, which is great news.

And the province is working with the First Nations Health Authority to get the second dose of vaccines to remote and Indigenous communities. They will be using a similar system as they used for the first dose a “whole of community” approach, visiting community by community to offer the vaccine to eligible residents.

In Ontario, there’s good progress, health officials have also shortened the waiting time between first and second doses. This is accelerating the anticipated pace of the vaccine rollout. And this past Monday, teams began to visit 31 fly-in First Nations communities, offering vaccines to youth.

In Manitoba, the province continues to deal with a difficult situation. Health authorities are working to control the third wave. Indigenous communities are showing great leadership, with Cross Lake Norway House and Island Lake with the highest vaccination rates for province for the first dose among adults.

In Alberta, a vaccination clinic led by the Métis Nation of Alberta (MNA) has been a great success. The pop-up clinic at MacDonald Island Park was especially effective in reaching communities that may have been hesitant about receiving a vaccine.

Reagan Bartell, who is the health director for the MNA, said that some Métis people told her they decided to get vaccinated after they found out the clinic was run by an Indigenous organization. The clinic will be traveling across the province for the summer.

Finally, last week, the governments of Nova Scotia as well as New Brunswick opened up the eligibility for vaccines to those 12 and older.

Overall, case counts are going down and vaccinations are increasing. This is tremendous news. But as we have seen in recent weeks, flare-ups can happen unexpectedly.

That is why it is so critical, so very important, to not let up until we get the job done and get that second dose of vaccine to those who need it. It's been a marathon and we can see the finish line in the near distance. But we can't stop until we've made it the whole way.

I'm very proud to have had the opportunity to work along with Indigenous leaders as well as healthcare officials, responding to this enormous challenge. It's been an honour to play a small role in helping to protect Indigenous communities.

As always, I remind everyone to please keep on following the advice of healthcare experts. Please limit contact with people outside of your immediate family. When you're out in public, it's essential to wear a mask. And don't forget to wash your hands frequently.

Meegwetch. Nakummek. Marci. Thank you. Merci.

MMIWG Federal Pathway Technical Briefing

Kwe kwe, Ullukkut [Ood-loo-koot], Tansi, hello, bonjour!

One major piece of the Federal Pathway is supporting the health and wellness of First Nations, Inuit and Métis peoples. For far too long, Indigenous Peoples have experienced poor health outcomes, rooted in Canada's colonial legacy.

These extreme health inequities contribute to the violence experienced by Indigenous women and girls, and 2SLGBTQQIA+ people. The death of Joyce Echaquan—a 37-year-old mother of seven from the Atikamekw de Manawan—made clear the devastating consequences of anti-Indigenous racism in our health care systems.

C'est pourquoi le gouvernement du Canada appuie le Principe de Joyce, une déclaration visant à faire en sorte que tous les peuples autochtones aient un accès égal et sans discrimination aux services de santé et aux services sociaux.

Mais il reste encore beaucoup à faire. Services aux Autochtones Canada est déterminé à prendre des mesures concrètes pour s'attaquer aux causes profondes de la violence et pour combler l'écart en matière de santé entre les Autochtones et les non-Autochtones.

Afin de respecter son engagement à éliminer le racisme dont sont victimes les Autochtones dans les services de santé, le gouvernement a proposé d'investir 126,7 millions de dollars sur trois ans pour favoriser des systèmes de santé exempts de discrimination, où les peuples autochtones sont respectés et en sécurité.

We also know that supporting families and survivors on their healing journeys will be essential to overcoming this national tragedy. To address this, the government has proposed to invest $12.5 million over five years, and $2.5 million ongoing, toward Indigenous-led programs that will support the physical, mental, spiritual and social well-being of families and survivors.

This is in addition to proposed investments of $597.6 million over three years, beginning in 2021-22, for mental wellness supports that will provide community-based, culturally relevant, and trauma-informed wellness services for families and survivors.

These build on other Federal Pathway commitments and Budget 2021 investments, including those for infrastructure, and children and families.

Lastly, I'd like to acknowledge the collaborative work of the Interdepartmental Indigenous Women's Well-Being Advisory Committee. Together, we are implementing the Federal Pathway with National Indigenous Women's Organizations.

The death of Joyce Echaquan—a 37-year-old mother of seven from the Atikamekw de Manawan—made clear the devastating consequences of anti-Indigenous racism in our health care systems.

That's why the Government of Canada is supporting Joyce's Principle—a declaration to ensure all Indigenous Peoples have equal access to health and social services free from discrimination.

But much more work needs to be done. Indigenous Services Canada is committed to taking concrete action to address the root causes of violence and to close the health gap between Indigenous and non-Indigenous people.

The Federal Pathway outlines immediate steps we're taking to ensure the health and wellness of all Indigenous Peoples across the country.

To address our commitment to eliminating anti-Indigenous racism in health care, the government has proposed to invest $126.7 million over three years to foster health systems free from discrimination, where Indigenous Peoples are respected and safe.

L'un des principaux éléments de la Voie fédérale est le soutien accordé à la santé et au bien-être des Premières Nations, des Inuits et des Métis. Depuis bien trop longtemps, on observe chez les peuples autochtones des résultats insatisfaisants en matière de santé qui découlent de l'héritage colonial du Canada.

Ces inégalités extrêmes en matière de santé contribuent à la violence dont sont victimes les femmes, les filles et les personnes 2SLGBTQQIA+ autochtones. Le décès de Joyce Echaquan, une femme de 37 ans membre des Atikamekw de Manawan et mère de sept enfants, a clairement fait ressortir les conséquences dévastatrices du racisme envers les Autochtones dans nos systèmes de santé.

C'est pourquoi le gouvernement du Canada appuie le Principe de Joyce, une déclaration visant à faire en sorte que tous les peuples autochtones aient un accès égal et sans discrimination aux services de santé et aux services sociaux.

Mais il reste encore beaucoup à faire. Services aux Autochtones Canada est déterminé à prendre des mesures concrètes pour s'attaquer aux causes profondes de la violence et pour combler l'écart en matière de santé entre les Autochtones et les non-Autochtones.

Afin de respecter son engagement à éliminer le racisme dont sont victimes les Autochtones dans les services de santé, le gouvernement a proposé d'investir 126,7 millions de dollars sur trois ans pour favoriser des systèmes de santé exempts de discrimination, où les peuples autochtones sont respectés et en sécurité.

Nous savons également qu'il sera essentiel d'appuyer les familles et les survivants dans leur démarche de guérison pour surmonter cette tragédie nationale. Pour y remédier, le gouvernement a proposé d'investir 12,5 millions de dollars sur cinq ans, et 2,5 millions de dollars par la suite, dans des programmes dirigés par les Autochtones qui favoriseront le bien-être physique, mental, spirituel et social des familles et des survivants.

Cette somme s'ajoute aux investissements proposés de 597,6 millions de dollars sur trois ans, à compter de 2021-2022, à l'égard de soutiens au bien-être mental qui permettront d'offrir aux familles et aux survivants des services de bien-être communautaires qui sont pertinents sur le plan culturel et tiennent compte des traumatismes.

Ils s'ajoutent à d'autres engagements pris dans le cadre de la Voie fédérale et aux investissements prévus dans le budget de 2021, notamment en ce qui concerne l'infrastructure, les enfants et les familles.

Enfin, je tiens à souligner le travail de collaboration du Comité consultatif interministériel sur le bien-être des femmes autochtones. Ensemble, nous mettons en œuvre la Voie fédérale avec les organisations nationales de femmes autochtones.

Meegwetch. Qujannamiik [Koo-ya-na-meek]. Marci. Thank you.
Merci.

Subject: Statement regarding Kamloops Indian Residential School

To: Rev. Patrick Tepoorten <ptepoorten@rcav.org>

Archdiocese of Vancouver

COMMUNICATIONS OFFICE

Dear Reverend Fathers and Deacons,

Please find linked below the following statement by Archbishop Miller on the situation regarding Kamloops Indian Residential School. The statement includes words of acknowledgement, apology and action and will be circulated more broadly to online portals and to media organizations should they request it.

Thank you,

Communications Office

Expression of Commitment

June 2, 2021

Dear First Nations governments and all Indigenous communities, families and citizens,

In light of the heartbreaking disclosure of the remains of 215 children at the former Kamloops Indian Residential School, I am writing to express my deep apology and profound condolences to the families and communities that have been devastated by this horrific news. Each time new evidence of a tragedy is revealed, or another victim comes forward, countless wounds are reopened, and I know that you experience renewed suffering.

I take this opportunity to reflect upon the apology I gave publicly before the Truth and Reconciliation Commission in 2013, words to which I remain committed and accountable: "I wish to apologize sincerely and profoundly to the survivors and their families, as well as to all those subsequently affected, for the anguish caused by the deplorable conduct of those Catholics who perpetrated mistreatment of any kind in these residential schools." The Church was unquestionably wrong in implementing a government colonialist policy which resulted in devastation for children, families and communities.

If words of apology for such unspeakable deeds are to bring life and healing, they must be accompanied by tangible actions that foster the full disclosure of the truth. Truth comes before reconciliation. On behalf of the people of the Archdiocese of Vancouver, I commit to the following steps in support of the Nations, families and communities impacted by the recent heartrending disclosure:

1. We will be fully transparent with our archives and records regarding all residential schools. We strongly urge all other Catholic and government organizations to do the same. Our records regarding the Kamloops Indian Residential School (Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc) were provided to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission and will remain available for review.

2. We will offer and support mental health support and counselling for family members and others whose loved ones may be buried on the site of the former Kamloops Indian Residential School.
3. We will offer to assist with technological and professional support to help the Tk'emlúps Secwépemc and other affected Nations in whatever way they choose to honour, retrieve, remember their deceased children.
4. We commit to supporting the same process and resources to all Nations in whose territory Catholic-run residential schools were forcibly located, and which fall within the historical boundaries of the Archdiocese of Vancouver.
5. We will renew our efforts to listen to Indigenous Peoples to hear from you how we can best walk with you along the path of justice.

We recognize that there is so much work remains to be done, yet we hope that, if we persevere with these commitments with humility, we can restore the trust among us that will bring healing.

Sincerely yours,

+ J. Michael Miller, CSB

Archbishop of Vancouver

Subject: Opposition Debate Summary - Kamloops Indian Residential School gravesite

Hello,

Today, June 3, 2021, the House of Commons debated the following NDP motion regarding the tragic findings at the former Residential School in Kamloops BC.

A summary of the debate is as follows. Of note:

- the Conservative Party, BQ and Green Party confirmed that they would support this motion; and
- a vote on the motion is expected to occur on Monday, June 7, 2021, following Question Period.

June 1, 2021 — Mr. Julian (New Westminster—Burnaby) — That, given that,

(i) the discovery of the grave of 215 children at Kamloops Indian Residential School has led to an outpouring of grief and anger across Canada,

(ii) the vast majority of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's calls to action remain uncompleted, despite the clear path to justice and reconciliation that the Commission provides,

(iii) survivors, families and nations are demanding concrete action to advance real reconciliation, as opposed to just more words and symbolic gestures,

the House call on the government to:

(a) cease its belligerent and litigious approach to justice for Indigenous children by immediately dropping its appeal before the Federal Court in file numbers T-1621-19 (compensation) and T-1559-20 (Jordan's Principle for non-status First Nations kids recognized by their nations) and to recognize the government's legal obligation to fully comply with Canadian Human Rights Tribunal orders in this regard;

(b) agree to sit down with the St. Anne's residential school survivors organization Peetabeck Keway Keykaywin Association to find a just solution to the fact that survivors' access to justice has been denied as a consequence of the actions of government lawyers in suppressing evidence at the Independent Assessment Process;

(c) accelerate the implementation of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's calls to action, including by providing immediate funding for further investigation into the deaths and disappearances of children at residential schools in compliance with calls to action 71 to 76;

(d) provide survivors, their families, and their communities with appropriate resources to assist with the emotional, physical, spiritual, mental, and cultural trauma resulting from residential schools; and

(e) within 10 days, table a progress report on actions taken in compliance with paragraphs (a) through (d) of the present motion, and that this report be deemed to have been referred to the Standing Committee on Indigenous and Northern Affairs for consideration upon tabling.

Summary

Liberal Party of Canada (Lib)

- The Minister of Northern Affairs expressed heart break and outrage over this finding, noting that further findings could occur and is a consequence of colonialism and systemic racism. He confirmed that the Government provided $27 million to spearhead the search of additional burial sites. He continued that the Government is committed to healing, reconciliation and listening to, and collaborating with, Indigenous partners in a meaningful and respectful manner. He reconfirmed the Government's commitment to delivering of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) Calls to Action (CTAs), including 72 to 76, noting that 80% are completed or underway, and that ongoing work is required with provincial, territorial and Indigenous partners. He said that "Canada will provide the necessary resources to support Indigenous communities on their healing journey,” including mental health support and locating and memorializing unmarked graves in collaboration with Indigenous community-led processes.

- On the St. Anne’s file, he noted that the Court has, at the request of the Government, conducted an independent third party review to determine further compensation for survivors.

- The Minister of Indigenous Services acknowledged the pain of Indigenous peoples due to these events and reaffirmed the Government’s commitment to supporting communities and families in recovering the truth to facilitate healing. He said the Government will be there for Indigenous communities, and is working with them to put together protocols on how to honor the children. He highlighted this week’s $27 million announcement to support survivors, families and communities across Canada to locate and memorialize children who died or went missing while attending residential schools. He said there is still work to do and a first investment of $70 million toward CTAs 72-76 is to be distributed based on the priorities of Indigenous communities. He noted the need for systemic reform of the Child and Family Services system and compensation for past harms. Regarding the CHRT order, he said the Government is working with First Nations leaders and partners to implement the Tribunal’s orders. He commended the work being done under Joyce’s principle and the commitment to providing First Nations children with access to necessary supports and services and ensuring fair and equitable compensation for children affected by the Child and Family Services Program.
- The Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Indigenous Services expressed sadness over this finding, as well as to the stain of residential schools and its tragic history. She discussed the dark history of the Kamloops residential school. She reaffirmed the Government’s commitments to advancing reconciliation and redressing past wrongdoings, including locating and memorializing those who passed away at residential schools, ensuring mental health supports and community wellness initiatives. She also spoke to the Distinctions-Based Mental Health Strategy proposed in Budget 2021, and to ongoing work to implement An Act respecting First Nations, Inuit and Métis children, youth and families. She also noted that systemic racism in Canada continues and the health care system. She noted the Government’s ongoing work to implement Joyce’s Principle.
- Other Lib Members, including the Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Northern Affairs, echoed many of the aforementioned comments, speaking to their sadness and instances in their ridings and to Government efforts to advance true reconciliation and healing, including on the TRC CTAs and helping residential school survivors. They also spoke to working with Indigenous communities to address their specific needs for healing, ensuring mental health supports, strengthening Indigenous child and family services and having a true understanding of Canada’s past.

New Democratic Party (NDP)

- NDP Leader Jagmeet Singh expressed sadness over the recent findings in Kamloops and the history of Canada’s treatment of Indigenous peoples in Canada generally. He termed the residential school system as “genocidal” and “genocide.” He called on the Government to do the work that “it has delayed for so long” and to ensure a “commitment to justice today.” He also called for the Government to stop pursuing court challenges against Indigenous children, the CHRTC ruling and residential school survivors. He further asked the Government to develop an “accelerated plan” to fully implement the TRC CTAs, including regarding burial sites, criticizing the Government for its slow progress on this initiative. Reflective of the motion being debated, he called for a progress report on the Government’s work in this regard in 10 days.
 - He indicated that the Catholic Church should apologize for the residential school system and should provide access to records regarding unmarked graves.
- MP Charlie Angus echoed many of his party leader’s comments, before speaking against the sad history of residential schools and Indigenous peoples in Canada as well as systemic racism. He said the Minister of Crown Indigenous Relations’ ongoing court challenge regarding St. Anne’s residential school survivors was “toxic”, suggesting that certain Catholic priest were being protected by the Minister’s ongoing legal action and called on the Minister to end this legal action.
- MP Rachel Blaney also echoed many of the party leader’s comments, particularly calling this genocide. She said at INAN committee today, the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation said survivors have been asking for funding and often do not receive a response. She also mentioned a need for trauma healing centres.

- MP Mumilaaq Qaqqaq spoke about the negative effects of the foster care system and intergenerational trauma. She highlighted history of Inuit and current conditions in Nunavut in general, including the suicide crisis, the lack of proper housing and the lack of appropriate mental health resources.
- Other NDP members expressed frustration over Government progress on the CTAs and MMIWG, and continuing to pursue litigation. They called for immediate and substantial action, including investigating other possible burial sites, funding supports, ending of legal action and reform of Indigenous child and family services.

Conservative Party of Canada (CPC)

- MP Glen Motz confirmed that the CPC would be supporting this motion. However, MP Dan Albas criticized the motion for being “Ottawa-led” and for not fully accounting for ongoing discussions and engagements with Indigenous communities and survivors, but still confirmed that he would support it.
- MP Mark Strahl noted that First Nations must continue to “get out from underneath” the Indian Act and spoke in support of such Indian Act opt-out legislation that advances self-determination and reconciliation like the First Nations Land Management Act and the First Nations Elections Act.
- Other CPC members expressed sadness over these findings and the shame of residential schools. Some criticized the Government for continuing to pursue litigation against Indigenous children and residential school survivors, and for the state of progress on delivering on the CTAs. Others provided examples of past injustices and horrors, and spoke to the need to do better as a government and society.

Bloc Québécois (BQ)

- MP Louise Charbonneau and MP Simon-Pierre Savard-Tremblay both confirmed that the BQ would be supporting this motion.
- Other BQ members expressed sadness and condolences over these findings, and criticized the Government for its progress on delivering on such Indigenous files as the TRC CTAs and safe drinking water. They also criticized the government for pursuing ongoing litigation against Indigenous children and residential school survivors. Moreover, they spoke to the need to find other unmarked graves and to identify victims through enhanced federal funding and to ensure such tragedies never happen again. They also encouraged the Government to quickly implement CTAs 71-78.
 - Other topics discussed included the likelihood of making similar findings moving forward; transitioning away from the Indian Act and providing more self-determination to Indigenous peoples and communities; ending racism; ensuring what happened to Joyce Echaquan does not occur again.
 - They also highlighted the need to consult Indigenous peoples in future cases similar to what happened in Kamloops.
- In response to Liberal member questions, BQ MP Gabriel St-Marie noted that he would support the implementation of Joyce’s Principle.

Green Party (GP)

- Former Green Party Leader Elizabeth May confirmed that the GP would be supporting the motion. She also called for further government action on MMIWG and the TRC CTAs.
- Other GP Members expressed sadness over these findings and the history of anti-Indigenous racism and residential schools. MP Manly spoke about housing and asked if there should be a housing strategy for urban Indigenous people. He also raised issues with foster care.

Next Steps

Bonjour à vous trois,

As requested yesterday by DM Fox and Minister Miller, here is a Minister's message to all staff for approval.

I'm sending it to the three of you as I believe MOs may want to make this a joint message, Antonia can confirm later.

The plan is to send it tomorrow.

Merci beaucoup,

Ce message traite de sujets susceptibles de provoquer des traumatismes liés à des souvenirs de mauvais traitements. Nous sommes conscients que certains employés pourraient ne pas vouloir lire la suite afin de minimiser le risque associé au déclenchement de ces traumatismes.

Chers collègues,

Cette semaine nous avons dû faire face à beaucoup d'émotion et à beaucoup de douleur. Vendredi dernier une fosse commune a été localisée dans le secteur du pensionnat de Kamloops en Colombie-Britannique sur le territoire traditionnel du peuple Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc. Et si cet événement est le premier, il ne sera malheureusement pas le dernier, les témoignages des survivants lors de la Commission de vérité et réconciliation (CVR) ne laissent planer aucun doute à ce sujet.

Cet événement n'est pas qu'une « triste histoire ». Il s'agit de notre histoire. Et il faut bien comprendre que les traumatismes créés par le système des pensionnats et leurs conséquences sont encore présents aujourd'hui, et le seront encore sur plusieurs générations.

Ces histoires ont longtemps été ignoré par certains. De nombreux Canadiens n'ont pu recevoir d'enseignement sur les peuples autochtones et les pensionnats. Les fonctionnaires de ce ministère, dont certains sont des survivants des pensionnats ou des enfants de survivants, travaillent très forts pour que l'histoire soit corrigée et ne se répète pas. Vous pouvez compter sur mon soutien.

Aujourd'hui, nous devons regarder la réalité en face et surtout agir. Supprimer les symboles du passé en n'en parlant pas ou en enlevant des statuts ne le changera pas. Il nous faut agir pour accepter, agir pour réparer, agir pour nous réconcilier.

Le Gouvernement s'est quant à lui engagé dans le budget 2019 à poursuivre le travail commencé par la CVR et à mettre en œuvre les appels à l'action 74 à 76 (enfants disparus et informations sur les sépultures) avec un financement de 27 millions de dollars. Le projet de loi faisant du 30 septembre la Journée nationale de la vérité et de la réconciliation au Canada a été adopté à l'unanimité vendredi dernier par les députés de la Chambre des communes (appel à l'action 80) et attend maintenant la décision du Sénat.

Aux équipes en région, aux gestionnaires, aux collègues, votre support auprès de vos collègues est très important et nécessaire. Soyez à l'écoute, discutez et veillez les uns sur les autres.

Si vous avez besoin de soutien psychologique, ou si vous connaissez quelqu'un qui en aurait besoin, différentes ressources sont offertes, dont la ligne téléphonique d'aide aux employés, au 1-800-268-7708 (pour malentendants - ATS au 1-800-567-5803). Dear colleagues,

This week we had to deal with a lot of emotion and a lot of pain. Last Friday a mass grave was located in the area of the Kamloops Indian Residential School in British Columbia, on the traditional territory of the Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc people. And if this event is the first, unfortunately it will not be the last, the testimonies of Survivors at the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) leave no doubt about it.

This is not just a "sad story". This is our history. And it must be understood that the traumas created by the residential school system and their consequences are still present today and will continue to be present for generations to come.

These stories have long been ignored by some. Many Canadians were not taught about Indigenous peoples and residential schools. Public servants in our Departments, some of whom are residential school Survivors or children of Survivors, are working very hard to ensure that history is corrected and not repeated. You can count on my support.

Today, we must face reality and, above all, act. Removing the symbols of the past by not speaking about it or removing statues will not change it. We must act to accept, act to repair, act to reconcile. And the best way to do that is to learn and to open ourselves to each other.

For its part, the Government committed in Budget 2019 to continue the work begun by the TRC and implement Calls to Action 74 to 76 (Missing Children and Burial Information) with $27 million in funding. The bill to designate September 30 as National Day of Truth and Reconciliation in Canada was passed unanimously last Friday by members of the House of Commons (Call to Action 80) and is now waiting the Senate's decision.

To regional teams, managers, colleagues, your support to your colleagues is very important and necessary. Listen, discuss and watch out for each other.

Bonjour à vous trois,

We have been approached by three departments so far inquiring about how this is being handled across the GC, apart from amplifying on social media, the Ministers' statement, the PM's statement, lowering of flags, and other statements by the Government.

Would the DMs like to send a suggested message to all departments so that they can share with their staff? Unless the Interim Clerk is already planning on sending one to all public servants? We have not heard back from PCO on this yet but if you are aware of any plans with PCO, please let us know.

Alternatively, we could just reach out to all Internal Comms shops and suggest they share in their messages.

Qu'en pensez-vous?

Merci beaucoup,

Heads up:

The TK'EMLUPS TE SECWPEPMC reached out to TC regional staff to ask for restrictions on the air space over the school, as they are being over-run with people coming to the scene of the tragedy, including flying drones overhead.

TC Departmental officials moved quickly to help them with this. TC has issued this NOTAM restricting the airspace over the school. They have also told them they stand ready to dispatch an inspector with special equipment to help take enforcement action against illegal drone use if the problem persists.

They will issue the following tweet tomorrow AM to announce the NOTAM for the airspace around the Kamloops Indian Residential School to the general public:

- We have $12M for the Centre of Expertise program over 5 years available – and the title of the $12M recipient is? Is that the Indigenous Centre for Cumulative Effects?

Good morning Kelley and Valerie, below is the financial information for environmental assessment and remediation on sites on or near the Kamloops Indian Residential School undertaken by the contaminated sites program. All work was done in relation to underground oil storage tanks. All the of the sites closed in 2000 and 2001. There were no archeological findings.

- In 1995-96 $15,920 was spent on environmental site assessment

- In 1998-99 $53,390 was spent on remediation
- In 1999-00 $112,847 was spent on remediation

Total expenditures: $182, 157

The Budget (Vote 1 and Vote 10) for the Contaminated Sites on Reserve Program more broadly is attached.

Please note that the program will continue to work to provide disaggregated site by site amounts. Will keep you apprised as to progress.

Apologies for the second email. I forgot to mention that some Yukon First Nations have already indicated that they will not be attending the event at Lower Post due to COVID-19 related concerns, including the AFN Regional Office. This will likely reduce the funding required for some elements of the request (the food order is being reduced by half).

Hi – Just a quick update on this to let you know where things are at with regards to funding and COVID-19.

With regards to funding, we have secured COVID-19 public health funding; however, the Yukon CIRNA/ISC-RO office is also able to fund the COVID-19 related requests through their ICSF advance. They are expecting to receive an ICFS proposal from the Daylu Dena Council later today – we will review with them and determine which source of funds better addresses the needs.

We have sent a request to OPPH to see if there is any funding that could be used to support the $66k for mental health counseling as well as the $58k requested for cultural and healing supports. This is in addition to the 22 cultural support workers and 5 mental health professionals that have been identified to provide support at the event (although these numbers are fluctuating a bit due to COVID-19 exposures and those who are now unwilling to travel due to increased cases). CIRNA is also exploring what funding it might have available to support the cultural and healing aspect of the request.

As to the DM Reserve, we're just confirming what pieces may still need to be covered and what Ts and Cs they align with – I'll let you know as soon as possible.

With regards to COVID-19, the news from Yukon isn't good. There are currently 51 active cases - the highest case count since the pandemic began. Most of the cases are in Whitehorse, but there is one active case in Watson Lake (which is the closest community to Lower Post, and where most people would be staying) and another 14 people are self-isolating; the territory is expecting dozens of new cases in the coming days. Also, while vaccination rates in the territory are generally high, there is a pocket around Watson Lake where only 50% of the population is vaccinated. The Chief Medical Officers of Health for BC and Yukon are meeting today to discuss whether the event can be held safely.

I'll let you know as soon as I hear more.

Many thanks

Thanks so much Heather! And I can only imagine with me contacting you late on Tuesday, it means lots of folks are on it. I would just say that we have a DM reserve and this is the first such event since the discovery in Kamloops – discovery is the wrong word and I am sorry it is late and I am having a challenge coming up with the words to describe the pain – and if we have T&C's that can support, we can find the funds at DM level. I just do not want that to be the issue. I read through our T&C's re primary health care authority and I would say it is on the margins (outside of the COVID-19 public health piece of $200K which I feel is clear), but I would be willing to recommend to DM. I have contacted Heritage also at DM level.
Hope you are well – it must be fun to do this role and you deserve it! Val

Hi - Requests for this event have come in through a few channels from a few organizations and are circulating around ISC and CIRNA. I'm scheduling a call with CIRNA in Whitehorse tomorrow morning to see what they've already found a source of funding to support, and what's still outstanding.

I agree that there are elements we can support and Northern Region has a bit of loose funding that we may be able to use for some aspects of the requests. I'll send an update tomorrow once I've talked to CIRNA.

Hi Val,

Thanks for the quick reply really appreciate it. I think hosting a couple of more of these talking circle over the coming weeks would be really beneficial. I can only imagine how busy your schedule must be every day, I have such a profound respect for you and your position.

At the end of the day I think as Public Servants we do the best we can both in supporting our communities and employees who feel they may not have a voice. I will share with you the message I wrote and read to my senior management team earlier this week. Have a great rest of the wk, and please if you ever need Indigenous employees help (know you can call on me) my sector is supportive of that. (Then again I think you likely get this from a lot of employees lol) ok bye for now 😊 In my own words:

Over the last 10 days Indigenous and non-Indigenous peoples have profoundly been saddened and overwhelmed with grief over the uncovering of 215 young souls at the Kamloops residential school.

Through this heavy load of anger, frustration and revictimization there also comes a sense of relief. Relief that a new level of understanding from non-Indigenous people now exists. Also, understanding of the reasons many Indigenous Public Servants many your colleagues have stayed fiercely committed to making positive change wherever we can no matter how hard and challenging it may be at times.

As a nation with a shared history and as Public Servants it is so vitally important for each person to understand the depth and breadth of systems, structures and laws that have attempted to eliminate Indigenous peoples and, when they weren't successful, to ensure we could never thrive as self-determining nations and cultures. Understanding of the vast changes needed in the realms of social justice, rights and title, laws and policies and leadership at all levels of the public service.

Through the grief of the Kamloops discovery and as we brace ourselves for the discoveries that are sure to follow. I'm grateful for colleagues that are mourning with us and committing to meaningful action. As we move forward on what is now a healing journey I encourage each of you to listen and learn about the impacts of residential schools and it's deep interconnectedness with the Child Welfare system we are so eagerly trying to change by supporting Indigenous communities. In addition listen to Indigenous employees and how best to support and recognize them and their realities.

For the young spirits left behind at the Kamloops Residential School and for the ancestors who have come to greet them to take them home we are reminded why our work is so important now more than ever.

Hi Jolene

Yes I was aware and in fact had registered for the session today. Thank you so much for doing it! I ended up being late on the INAN Committee appearance and then had to speak to a colleague in distress. So, I did not think it would be appropriate for me to connect at 2PM. If you have suggestions for us to ramp up supports, I would be absolutely open to actioning those. I attended the closing yesterday of the Sacred Fire and I am going to see if the ceremonial site can remain available. I participated in various employee and management fora in the last few weeks and can feel a shared pain, exhaustion and I would say, some conflicting views on whether there is hope for systemic change.

Let me know what I can do to help.

Hi Val,

Hope this email finds you well. I am not sure if you were made aware or not but today I hosted an Indigenous Virtual Healing Circle for 2 hours for our Indigenous employees. Last week after speaking with some Indigenous employees who sought me out to speak about the rediscovery of the gravesites in Kamloops it was evident something had to be organized. So alas, I put my mind organize it, and nearly 135 Indigenous employees registered for the event. It was apparent from the session that many many of our Indigenous employees are hurting or feel like they are carrying the extra burden of grief post Kamloops. I think for sure today with the Elder present and his guidance there was some healing for employees or at the very relief a safe place to talk. I think more of these sessions might be key going forward for Indigenous employees

I just wanted to let you know of what is happening at the employee level. I always think its important to keep the doors open of communication between senior management and employees.

And I always know you support us no matter who or where we work.

Thanks for listening. And stay well ☺

Chers collègues,

Ces derniers jours nous avons fait face à beaucoup d'émotions difficiles et douloureuses. Le sort de ces jeunes enfants autochtones, morts et enterrés sans que leur famille ne soit mise au courant, nous bouleverse tous. Nous pouvons vous assurer que nous sommes prêts à travailler sans relâche avec vous et avec nos partenaires afin de trouver les réponses nécessaires.

Plusieurs d'entre vous êtes directement touchés par cette nouvelle, que ce soit en raison d'une expérience personnelle dans un pensionnat autochtone ou en raison de l'expérience d'un membre de votre famille immédiate, comme un parent, un oncle, une tante ou un grand-parent). Dans tous les cas, nous souhaitons vous offrir notre soutien inconditionnel.

Nous sommes tellement fiers de votre dévouement quotidien à l'amélioration des conditions de vie des Autochtones et de votre travail acharné pour faire avancer la réconciliation. Nous sommes profondément impressionnés par tout ce que vous accomplissez.

Au cours des dernières années, nous avons assisté à un tournant dans la prise de conscience collective de ce qu'ont vécu et vivent encore les Autochtones. Votre travail prend toute sa signification et sa pleine mesure. Nous continuerons ensemble, plus forts, vers la construction d'un pays uni et inclusif.

Aux équipes en région, aux gestionnaires, aux collègues, votre soutien auprès de vos collègues est très important et nécessaire. Soyez à l'écoute, discutez et veillez les uns sur les autres, surtout sur les employés autochtones.

This message deals with topics that may cause trauma by invoking memories of past abuse. We recognize that some employees may not want to read on to minimize the risk associated with triggering.

Dear colleagues,

These past few days we have had to face a lot of emotion and a lot of pain. The fate of these young Indigenous children, who have died and were buried anonymously without their families knowing about them, is devastating to all of us. We can assure you that we will work tirelessly with you and our partners to find the necessary answers.

Many of us have been directly affected by this news, either because of personal experiences at a residential school or because of the experience of a direct family member, such as a parent, uncle, aunt or grandparent. We want to assure you of our unconditional support.

We are so proud of your daily dedication to help improving the lives of Indigenous Peoples and your hard work to advance reconciliation. We are deeply impressed by everything you do.

Over the past years, we have witnessed a turning point in the collective awareness of what Indigenous Peoples have experienced and continue to experience, and your work takes on its full meaning and its full measure. We will continue all together—stronger—to build a united and inclusive country.

To regional teams, managers and colleagues, your support for your peers is very important and necessary. Listen, discuss and watch out for each other, especially Indigenous employees.

Trying to find ways to reach out. Do you think a Ministerial message to our teams, with a focus on Indigenous employees would be well received? Maybe we time it for late this week, and flag it as a week after the discovery, a recognition of the pain and suffering people are going through as they absorb it....

Thoughts? I am pretty sure he would be very happy to do it if we ask.

Colleagues – further to the email sent from our Deputies the other day, I would encourage you to check-in with your teams and to create the space needed to grieve, discuss and share...related to the terrible news that has shaken many of us and many of our colleagues.

If regions and directorates require Elder support for staff either individually or through sharing circles, I've spoken to Stéphane Romain from our Branch and he will be available to help facilitate those supports through the Iskotew Lodge and to secure Elder services through Ishkonigan. We have a great circle of Elders that could assist.

Take care of yourself and of each other!

Si les régions ou les directions générale ont besoin du soutien d'un aîné pour votre personnel, que ce soit individuellement ou par le biais d'un cercles de partage, j'ai parlé à Stéphane Romain de notre secteur et il sera disponible pour aider à faciliter ces soutiens par le biais de la Loge Iskotew et pour obtenir des services d'aînés par le biais d'Ishkonigan. Chers collègues,

C'est avec beaucoup de tristesse que nous avons appris la découverte de 215 corps d'enfants sur le site d'un ancien pensionnat à Kamloops, en Colombie-Britannique.

Nos pensées vont aujourd'hui vers la Première Nation Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc, ainsi que toutes les personnes touchées directement ou indirectement par cette découverte macabre et par l'héritage du système des pensionnats.

Cela nous rappelle un chapitre très sombre de notre histoire. Mais nous devons continuer à travailler avec les survivants et les familles des victimes afin de rebâtir une relation basée sur la reconnaissance de leurs droits, le respect, la collaboration et la confiance. Nos ministères se sont adressés à des partenaires, comme l'Autorité sanitaire des Premières Nations, pour offrir toute l'aide qu'ils peuvent fournir.

Cette affaire est loin d'être qu'un événement purement historique. Plusieurs de ces enfants enterrés ont possiblement des parents, des frères ou sœurs, des nièces, des neveux et d'autres membres de leurs familles qui sont toujours vivants aujourd'hui et qui se demanderont si leurs êtres chers sont parmi ceux et celles qui ont été trouvés. Plusieurs des aspects de ces événements continueront d'être traumatisants, loin dans le futur.

This email deals with topics that may cause trauma invoked by memories of past abuse. We recognize that some employees may not want to read on to minimize the risk associated with triggering.

Dear colleagues,

It was with great sadness that we learned of the discovery of 215 children's bodies at the site of a former residential school in Kamloops, British Columbia.

Our thoughts today are with the Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc First Nation and all those directly and indirectly affected by this unsettling discovery and by the legacy of the residential school system.

This reminds us of a very dark chapter in our history, but we must continue to work with survivors and the families of those lost to rebuild a relationship based on recognition of their rights, respect, collaboration and trust. Our departments have reached out to partners, such as the First Nations Health Authority, to offer any assistance they can.

This is of course much more than a historical issue. Many of those 215 buried children may have parents, siblings, nieces, nephews and other family members still living today who may have no knowledge of what happened to their loved ones and who will be asking themselves if they are among those who have been discovered. Many aspects of these traumatic events remain very real today and will continue to do so well into the future.

If you need support—or know someone who does—different resources are available to you through the Employee Assistance Program, which you can reach by calling 1-800-268-7708 (or TTY for people with hearing impairments at 1-800-567-5803). Proposal for a Response Team:

Findings of Children's Remains at Indian Residential Schools

Issue:

- The finding of children's remains at the site of the former Kamloops Indian Residential School has raised the profile of the issues surrounding missing children and burial information in relation to the legacy of residential schools in Canada.
- While Crown-Indigenous Relations has a leadership role in the Government's response and forward strategy, Indigenous Services Canada is heavily implicated, and in particular with respect to:
 - Its program streams, and in particular, land and environment, mental health and healing, child and family services, education and associated investments
 - Its regional presence
 - Its policy direction, ensuring alignment with other initiatives (MMIWG CFJ, UNDRIP, justice and policing etc) and providing evidence-based advice to Ministers
 - Its litigation management strategy
 - Its relationships with partners – Indigenous partners, PTs, CAs/OGDs (esp CIRNA and PCH), survivors and families, international organizations including UN
 - Its strategic communications with regional, national and international media
 - Its staff complement, with a high percentage of Indigenous employees dedicated to Indigenous issues
- Given the whole-of-ISC implications in responding to the TRC Calls to Action (in particular 71-76), it is recommended that the Department launch a tiger team to coordinate ISC response and contribute to the broader Government effort.

Mandate:

- To support the Minister and the Deputies in setting strategic direction and prioritizing actions and resources, aligning with other whole of government efforts to address the TRC Calls to Action
- To be accountable for tracking the Department's actions that demonstrate progress against TRC Calls to Action
- To provide leadership on behalf of ISC as the point of contact with CIR on coordinated response
- To support whole-of-ISC governance to ensure a timely, coordinated and sustained response
- To provide a single point of entry/exit on information and directions with respect to the response
 - With Regions
 - With CAs and OGDs (especially CIR, PCH, Justice, Public Safety)
 - With Indigenous partners
 - With PTs, including development of FPT coordinated response strategies, where appropriate;
- To support sectors in their engagements
- Be culturally-safe, trauma and violence informed

Organization:

- Given the whole-of-ISC, cross-sectoral implications, it is suggested that the Response Team be situated within the Strategic Policy and Partnerships Sector (SPP)
- The Team would be:
 - Headed by an Executive (suggest EX-03 level), reporting directly to the ADM, Strategic Policy & Partnerships
 - 4 temporary full-time FTEs (suggest one FTE with experience in each of policy, operations, engagement including Indigenous and PT) – micro-missions
 - Leverage a broader network across the department, with designated contacts in each of the Department's sectors and functions

Next Steps:

- Confirm establishment of team in SPP
- Identify lead Executive, and nominate FTEs
- Identify sector/functional points of contact
- Note to Minister on organization and early deliverables, including:
 - Governance
 - Go-Forward Strategy, with Short- and Medium-Term Deliverables, including: recommended outreach, research/analysis, and decisions required, timing

Here's a quick one-pager on what an "Incident Response Team" could look like.

I shared with Gail, who was comfortable as something to get the ball rolling.

I understand (from emails last night) that LED may also see themselves as lead – the one-pager identifies SPP as lead/point of coordination, given whole-of-ISC response, so may need to reflect on that decision point.

Happy to discuss – I haven't shared beyond you and Gail (and Geni!) for the moment.

Proposal for an Incident Command Team:

Response to Discovery of Children's Remains at Indian Residential School Sites

June 2021

Issue:

- The discovery of children's remains at the site of the former Kamloops Indian Residential School has raised the profile of the issues surrounding missing children and burial information in relation to the legacy of residential schools in Canada.
- While Crown-Indigenous Relations has a leadership role in the Government's response and forward strategy, Indigenous Services Canada is heavily implicated, and in particular with respect to:
 - Its program streams, and in particular, land and environment, mental health, child and family services, education
 - Its regional presence
 - Its relationships with partners – Indigenous partners, PTs, CAs/OGDs (esp CIRNA and PCH)
 - Its staff complement, with a high percentage of Indigenous employees and employees dedicated to Indigenous issues
- Given the whole-of-ISC implications in managing this file, it is recommended that the Department stand up an Incident Command Team to coordinate ISC response and contribute to the broader Government effort.

Mandate:

- To support the Minister and the Deputies in setting strategic directions and tracking the Department's contributions on this file
- To be the point of contact with CIR on coordinated response
- To support whole-of-ISC governance to ensure a coordinated and efficient response
- To provide a single point of entry/exit on information with respect to the Kamloops response
 - With Regions
 - With CAs and OGDs (especially CIR and PHC)
 - With Indigenous partners
 - With PTs
- To support sectors in their engagements on the file

Organization:

- Given the whole-of-ISC, cross-sectoral implications, it is suggested that the Incident Command Team be situated within the Strategic Policy and Partnerships Sector (SPP)
- The Team would be:
 - Headed by an Executive (classification tbd, but suggest EX-02 or EX-03 level), reporting directly to the ADM, Strategic Policy & Partnerships (LED has suggested a name)
 - 3-4 temporary full-time FTEs (suggest one FTE in experience in each of policy, operations, engagement) – either on assignment or more informally "on loan"
 - Leverage a broader network across the department, with designated contacts in each of the Department's sectors and functions

Next Steps:

- Confirm establishment of team in SPP
- Identify lead Executive, and nominate FTEs
- Identify sector/functional points of contact
- Note to Minister on organization and early deliverables, including:
 - Governance
 - Go-Forward Strategy, with Short- and Medium-Term Deliverables, including: recommended outreach, research/analysis, and decisions required

Attached is a draft package for consideration. You will note that we have lined up the key players to speak to the issues.

Thanks

Invitation

Bonjour chers collègues,

À la suite de l'annonce de la découverte dévastatrice au pensionnat de Kamloops, j'aimerais vous inviter à discuter des développements et des stratégies pour aborder la question des pensionnats alors que nous essayons tous de naviguer sur la voie à suivre.

Au cours de cette réunion, nous partagerons des informations sur les outils et les soutiens fédéraux que nous pouvons exploiter et quelques réflexions initiales sur la façon dont nous pouvons coordonner les efforts.

Je comprends qu'il s'agisse d'un préavis plutôt court, mais j'attends avec impatience votre contribution à cette importante discussion.

Christiane Renard

Good Afternoon Colleagues,

Following the announcement of the devastating discovery at the Kamloops Indian residential school, I would like to invite you to discuss developments and strategies to address the residential schools issue as we all try to navigate the path forward.

During this meeting, we will share information about departmental tools and supports that can be leveraged and some initial thoughts on how we may coordinate efforts.

I am looking to you to share requests and reactions received within your jurisdiction, what your government may be considering as a response, and what opportunities might arise for partnership.

I appreciate this is rather short notice but I look forward to your input in this important discussion.

[Our thoughts continue to be with the Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc First Nation and all those directly and indirectly affected by this unsettling discovery and by the legacy of the residential school system.]

o Daily meetings of lead Assistant Deputy Ministers (Crown-Indigenous Relations, Indigenous Services Canada, Canadian Heritage), currently being convened by Crown-Indigenous Relations

Gail just texted that she's fine with it. Okay if she shares with Martin R, or would you like to share with DM Q-W (and other DMs) first?

Thanks,

Chris asked last night for a piece on broader whole-of-government governance (attached). She reviewed this morning and is comfortable, but asked me to share with you for any comments before she sends to PCO/DMs.

Are you able to review on a priority basis this morning?

Thanks,
Carolyn

Governance and Coordination of Federal Response:

Discovery of Children's Remains at Indian Residential Schools

Context:

- The finding of children's remains at the site of the former Kamloops Indian Residential School has raised the profile of the issues surrounding missing children and burial information in relation to the legacy of residential schools in Canada.
- The Government of Canada approach will require a coordinated response across the federal family, with shared objectives, clear roles & responsibilities, and strong governance and oversight mechanisms.

Shared Objectives:

- To ensure reliable and comprehensive information to inform actions and decisions by senior officials and Ministers (requests for assistance, outreach to partners, etc.)
- To be nimble and responsive to requests for assistance from Indigenous groups, communities and organizations in responding to needs emerging from the Kamloops discovery, while ensuring due diligence in the allocation of federal funding
- To provide a single, integrated window for partners, including Indigenous and PT partners, and leveraging opportunities for collaboration whenever possible
- To provide culturally-safe, trauma-informed approaches across the spectrum of federal government responses and actions
- To provide a seamless, whole-of-government response in engaging our partners, and in the development and communication of the Government's response more broadly

Roles & Responsibilities:

- The Government response will implicate central agencies, lead departments, and a broad range of supporting departments and agencies, including:
 - The Privy Council Office (PCO), led by Operations Branch and working with PCO colleagues such as Plans and Consultations, Results & Delivery and Intergovernmental Affairs, in convening the federal family in support of Cabinet (including the Cabinet Committee on Reconciliation) and the Prime Minister
 - Finance Canada and the Treasury Board Secretariat, in ensuring sufficient funds in support of the federal response, and the necessary flexibilities in Government programming
 - Crown-Indigenous Relations and Northern Affairs Canada, as the lead department on the Government's response to the legacy of residential schools, and to the Calls to Action of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (and in particular Calls to Action 72-76)
 - Indigenous Services Canada, with a broad footprint for the delivery of programs and services to Indigenous people and communities, including with respect to land and environment, child and family services, education and social programs, mental health and Jordan's Principle

- It is important to note the Regional Offices of both Crown-Indigenous Relations and Indigenous Services Canada will be particularly instrumental in engaging partners, assessing needs and delivering federal responses.
- Canadian Heritage, whose Celebration, Commemoration and Learning programming provided the Paths to Healing grant to Tk'emlups te Secwepemc for the ground-penetrating radar that uncovered the buried children at the site of the Kamloops Residential School
- Justice Canada, who will be responsible for the legal and litigation management issues, including the investigation by the International Criminal Court for crimes against humanity
- Other government departments and agencies, as may be required to inform and support the Government's response (e.g., Transport Canada in restricting the air space over the school, OCHRO in supporting federal public servants, especially Indigenous public servants)

Governance & Oversight:

- Given the urgency, the complexity, and the fundamental importance of the Government's response, strong whole-of-government governance and oversight is required on an immediate basis.
- It is proposed that this governance be anchored in:
 - Daily meetings of lead Assistant Deputy Ministers (Crown-Indigenous Relations, Indigenous Services Canada, Canadian Heritage), currently being convened by Crown-Indigenous Relations
 - Regular (twice weekly) meetings of a core group of Deputy Ministers, including the Deputy Secretary (Operations) at the Privy Council Office, and the Deputy Ministers of Crown-Indigenous Relations, Indigenous Services, and Justice Canada
 - The Deputy Secretary (Operations) will ensure regular reporting to the Interim Clerk of the Privy Council
 - Additional Deputies will be engaged as required to inform Government response
 - Secretariat support could be provided by an interdepartmental team, embedded within PCO, to coordinate information and analysis from across departments, with a model similar to PCO's COVID Secretariat
 - Four Corners meetings as required, with officials from key departments and Minister's Officers, to frame issues and consider options
 - Updates to the Cabinet Committee on Reconciliation, and/or full Cabinet, as required and as appropriate over the summer months
- At the same time, it is anticipated that each key department of agency will organize itself for its own operations and response, while also supporting full participation in whole-of-Government governance, coordination and response.
 - In the case of Indigenous Services Canada, a small task team is being established, reporting to its Assistant Deputy Minister, Strategic Policy and Partnerships, and leveraging a broader network of designated subject matter experts across the department. The team would support the Minister and the Deputies in setting strategic directions, prioritizing actions and resources, and aligning with other whole of government efforts to address the TRC Calls to Action and the reconciliation agenda more broadly.
- It is also suggested that the Deputy Ministers of Crown-Indigenous Relations and Indigenous Services convene their provincial/territorial counterparts to share information and identify opportunities to collaborate in their responses. A first such meeting is scheduled for Monday, June 8, 2021.

- Existing forums would be leveraged for ongoing engagement with National Indigenous Organizations and other Indigenous partners, with additional engagement effectively coordinated between Crown-Indigenous Relations and Indigenous Services Canada to ensure common messaging and integrated response

Next Steps:

- Share draft approach among key federal partners, including PCO, Crown-Indigenous Relations, Indigenous Services Canada
- Confirm approach to governance, including participation and frequency for Deputy Minister-level calls, and associated Secretariat support
- Identify core documents, including: dashboard of requests for assistance; tracking of engagement with partners; strategic communications and engagement plan; overview of existing options for federal supports
- Return to Cabinet, with a proposed strategy for managing the federal response in the short (summer) and medium terms.

BC	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Flags at Legislature flown at half-mast. No funding commitments have been announced. Premier Horgan will be visiting the northern B.C. community of Lower Post on June 21, National Indigenous People Day, for the demolishing of a former residential school there. It will start the process of building a new community centre, supported by both the federal and provincial government. Premier Horgan repeated his government's responsibility to implement the 94 calls to action in the TRC noting the government's commitment through mandate letters, work being done, and the adoption of UNDRIP. B.C. provincial health officer Dr. Bonnie Henry committed to meeting with her teams to discuss further steps and work to implement more of the calls to action and rights outlined in United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. Indigenous Relations and Reconciliation Minister Murray Rankin said he has spoken with Chief Rosanne Casimir to offer support to the Nation. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc First Nation received a grant from B.C.'s Pathway to Healing program, which allowed the nation to pay for ground-penetrating radar in finding the 215 children. The Union of BC Chiefs sent a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau demanding that he take leadership in ensuring appropriate and concrete steps are taken to establish a proper response. Specifically, they are calling for a legal framework governing the protection and investigation of the unmarked mass burial site. This framework will be used to address other mass burial sites which they anticipate to be found. The letter also noted: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Mass and unmarked graves are clear evidence of the commission of massive human rights and humanitarian law violations The unmarked burial site points to violations of 'last rites' and the denial of burial rights and respectful handling of human remains of Indigenous people. Immediate action must be taken in full partnership with First Nations to identify, seize and control all records of the school to ensure they inform the investigation needed. Subject: Kamloops follow-up
Attachments: Sector Working Group Contacts.docx; GOC Governance - Kamloops Response.docx

Hi, Chris. I had an MS Teams meeting with Gail, Danielle Belanger & Lynne Newman late this aft, to get an update on their organization around Kamloops response.

A quick update:

- Task Force within SPP: Danielle Belanger is leading, as you know, with David Russell (from RO) being loaned to the TF from RO-BC, and Danielle drawing from her existing team (3 FTEs) for the time being. Danielle flagged a concern about resources – she has taken people off of other files (esp MTP), which may not be sustainable over the summer
- Response Team – what they are calling the “network” of “go to” people embedded in the sectors. They will be meeting twice weekly, and I have asked to attend as well. Current list attached FYI – still waiting on a LED contact (and I have raised that if Regional folks are not directly involved in the TF then we will need an excellent sub-network of Regional contacts – so we have eyes and ears on the ground
- FPT follow-up – there were three discrete follow-ups federal deputies agreed to share: (1) Short descriptions/links to relevant federal programs; (2) Requests received from communities by jurisdiction (bilateral); and (3) Details on available mental health supports and key statistics.
 - SPP is coordinating and they are targeting having (1) and (3) for you to send before end of week, translated, but thinking that (2) may need to follow next week.
- Other follow-up – we discussed key pieces: Danielle is exploring a dashboard that can be updated weekly or more frequently. In my mind, I think key pieces are:
 - What the federal government has to offer (a map of programs, authorities, funding), building on what we will share with PTs post-FPTI
 - What the PTs are offering, building on their existing tracker done for the FPT meeting
 - Tracker of incoming requests/outgoing supports, flagging those that are the subject of partnership with PTs, municipalities or others
 - Maybe a calendar of meetings and events – I’m already thinking June 12 annt in Quebec (?), June 21 Lower Post, end of June release of Kamloops report, etc. etc.
 - I was also thinking of a map of the 139 (?) residential school sites, delineating the ones flagged by TRC as likely having unmarked graves
 - Anything else top of mind? Apparently, CFRDO has pulled together a list of investments but I haven’t seen it yet.

- Upcoming meetings – not sure if you want to start to call additional DM-level meetings, or if PCO/CIR will be doing so:
 - Re-attaching the governance doc, but not sure if that is now the plan?
 - Would you like to schedule another meeting with core group of DMs?
 - Would you like to schedule some bilats with your PT DM counterparts (you mentioned Quebec, but maybe others)
 - I assume we can wait a bit before scheduling another FPTI meeting – but can flag intentions in your follow-up email

Happy to discuss – could also arrange a meeting with Val, Gail, Danielle, Lynne.

Thanks,
Carolyn

Governance and Coordination of Federal Response:

Context:

- The finding of children's remains at the site of the former Kamloops Indian Residential School has raised the profile of the issues surrounding missing children and burial information in relation to the legacy of residential schools in Canada.
- The Government of Canada approach will require a coordinated response across the federal family, with shared objectives, clear roles & responsibilities, and strong governance and oversight mechanisms.

Shared Objectives:

- To ensure reliable and comprehensive information to inform actions and decisions by senior officials and Ministers (requests for assistance, outreach to partners, etc.)
- To be nimble and responsive to requests for assistance from Indigenous groups, communities and organizations in responding to needs emerging from the Kamloops discovery, while ensuring due diligence in the allocation of federal funding
- To provide a single, integrated window for partners, including Indigenous and PT partners, and leveraging opportunities for collaboration whenever possible
- To provide culturally-safe, trauma-informed approaches across the spectrum of federal government responses and actions
- To provide a seamless, whole-of-government response in engaging our partners, and in the development and communication of the Government's response more broadly

Roles & Responsibilities:

- The Government response will implicate central agencies, lead departments, and a broad range of supporting departments and agencies, including:
 - The Privy Council Office (PCO), led by Operations Branch and working with PCO colleagues such as Plans and Consultations, Results & Delivery and Intergovernmental Affairs, in convening the federal family in support of Cabinet (including the Cabinet Committee on Reconciliation) and the Prime Minister
 - Finance Canada and the Treasury Board Secretariat, in ensuring sufficient funds in support of the federal response, and the necessary flexibilities in Government programming
 - Crown-Indigenous Relations and Northern Affairs Canada, as the lead department on the Government's response to the legacy of residential schools, and to the Calls to Action of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (and in particular Calls to Action 72-76)
 - Indigenous Services Canada, with a broad footprint for the delivery of programs and services to Indigenous people and communities, including with respect to land and environment, child and family services, education and social programs, mental health and Jordan's Principle

- It is important to note the Regional Offices of both Crown-Indigenous Relations and Indigenous Services Canada will be particularly instrumental in engaging partners, assessing needs and delivering federal responses.
- Canadian Heritage, whose Celebration, Commemoration and Learning programming provided the Paths to Healing grant to Tk'emlups te Secwepemc for the ground-penetrating radar that uncovered the buried children at the site of the Kamloops Residential School
- Justice Canada, who will be responsible for the legal and litigation management issues, including the investigation by the International Criminal Court for crimes against humanity
- Other government departments and agencies, as may be required to inform and support the Government's response (e.g., Transport Canada in restricting the air space over the school, DND offering to assist with a forensic anthropologist, OCHRO in supporting federal public servants, especially Indigenous public servants).

Governance & Oversight:

- Given the urgency, the complexity, and the fundamental importance of the Government's response, strong whole-of-government governance and oversight is required on an immediate basis.
- It is proposed that this governance be anchored in:
 - Daily meetings of lead Assistant Deputy Ministers (Crown-Indigenous Relations, Indigenous Services Canada, Canadian Heritage), currently being convened by Crown-Indigenous Relations
 - Regular (twice weekly) meetings of a core group of Deputy Ministers, including the Deputy Secretary (Operations) at the Privy Council Office, and the Deputy Ministers of Crown-Indigenous Relations, Indigenous Services, and Justice Canada
 - The Deputy Secretary (Operations) will ensure regular reporting to the Interim Clerk of the Privy Council
 - Additional Deputies will be engaged as required to inform Government response
 - Secretariat support could be provided by an interdepartmental team, embedded within PCO, to coordinate information and analysis from across departments, with a model similar to PCO's COVID Secretariat
 - Four Corners meetings as required, with officials from key departments and Minister's Officers, to frame issues and consider options
 - Updates to the Cabinet Committee on Reconciliation, and/or full Cabinet, as required and as appropriate over the summer months
- At the same time, it is anticipated that each key department of agency will organize itself for its own operations and response, while also supporting full participation in whole-of-Government governance, coordination and response.
 - In the case of Indigenous Services Canada, a small task team is being established, reporting to its Assistant Deputy Minister, Strategic Policy and Partnerships, and leveraging a broader network of designated subject matter experts across the department. The team would support the Minister and the Deputies in setting strategic directions, prioritizing actions and resources, and aligning with other whole of government efforts to address the TRC Calls to Action and the reconciliation agenda more broadly.
- It is also suggested that the Deputy Ministers of Crown-Indigenous Relations and Indigenous Services convene their provincial/territorial counterparts to share information and identify opportunities to collaborate in their responses. A first such meeting is scheduled for Monday, June 8, 2021.

- Existing forums would be leveraged for ongoing engagement with National Indigenous Organizations and other Indigenous partners, with additional engagement effectively coordinated between Crown-Indigenous Relations and Indigenous Services Canada to ensure common messaging and integrated response

Next Steps:

- Share draft approach among key federal partners, including PCO, Crown-Indigenous Relations, Indigenous Services Canada
- Confirm approach to governance, including participation and frequency for Deputy Minister-level calls, and associated Secretariat support
- Identify core documents, including: dashboard of requests for assistance; tracking of engagement with partners; strategic communications and engagement plan; overview of existing options for federal supports
- Return to Cabinet, with a proposed strategy for managing the federal response in the short (summer) and medium terms.

Hi:

I agree, this is a good document, small modifications in the attached. I added reference to MMIWGs (that Daniel would speak to) and TRC was there.

PT reactions doc is great and super helpful.

I didn't think of elders but I don't think it is required.

Let's share with Daniel, Gina, Val and Isabelle (I am happy to do that unless Gail prefers to go through ADM group). Let me know! Chris Hi, Chris. Attached is a draft Scenario Note for Monday's FPT meeting on Kamloops.

Note:

- Gail is asking below if you would like this shared with Daniel Quan-Watson, others?
- Anne, we should check against RSVPs
- I thought the annex on PT reactions and responses was quite good – I highlighted a few things. We could mine that table to provide a general reference in your speaking remarks to the range of reactions and responses that PT have taken – from Premier Horgan visiting Lower Post, to outreach to Indigenous communities and leaders and to each other, to commitments to mental health supports and help in finding unmarked burial sites.
- References to MMIWG and TRC noticeably absent – wonder if that's deliberate / expectation that Daniel Q-W would cover?

And just a note – I am assuming that there is no need for any Indigenous elders/leaders involvement in this meeting. I think that's the plan, but just wanted to double-check.

Happy to share with Val as well.

Thanks,
Carolyn

Here you go.

We got lots of stuff from sectors but jettisoned a fair bit as not entirely relevant or helpful. Used annexes from RO, LED and Danielle B.

We did not get anything from FNIHB so not sure what is up there – we copied 4-5 people....we did take mental health stuff came from SPD's work on Budget 21 (FNIHB inputs to Strat Pol), with some supplementation from our website.

Will be keeping an eye out over the weekend in case there is stuff.

I do note other ADMs are not on the guest list for Monday so can flag to Carolyn when we send this in. Not sure what their intent is there,

MEETING SCENARIO NOTE

MEETING WITH	Federal-Provincial-Territorial Deputy Ministers of Indigenous Affairs on Kamloops Response
MEETING DATE	June 7, 2021
LOCATION	Virtual
PARTICIPANTS (ISC)	Christiane Fox, Deputy Minister Valerie Gideon, Associate Deputy Minister Gail Mitchell, Assistant Deputy Minister, Strategic Policy and Partnerships
PARTICIPANTS (NON ISC)	Daniel Quan-Watson, Deputy Minister, Crown-Indigenous Relations Gina Wilson, Deputy Minister, Diversity and Inclusion and Youth and Senior Associate Deputy Minister of Canadian Heritage Provincial/Territorial Deputy Ministers Responsible for Indigenous Affairs (see Annex B)
PURPOSE OF MEETING	To discuss developments and strategies to address the residential school findings
AGENDA ITEMS	1- Opening Remarks 2- Federal Context 3- Federal Tools/Supports: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> i. CIRNA ii. ISC iii. PCH 4- Roundtable: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Opportunities for Partnership 5- Closing Remarks

Objectives: To discuss developments and strategies to address the residential school findings from a multilateral, intergovernmental perspective.

What is a successful outcome of this meeting: Crown-Indigenous Relations, Indigenous Services Canada and Canadian Heritage will communicate to provinces and territories what federal tools and supports exist. Federal representatives will learn what requests and reactions have been received in the provinces and territories, what their governments may be considering as a response, and what opportunities might arise for FPT partnerships.

Opportunities to advance files or address issues: This will be the first time that this forum of FPT Deputy Ministers on Indigenous Affairs will be used to address issues other than COVID-19. This meeting presents an opportunity to transform this forum and gauge interest and willingness of provinces and territories to continue engaging and partnering with Canada beyond the pandemic.

MAIN POINTS

- Immediate focus on increasing mental health supports offered through the First Nations and Inuit Health Branch. 24-hour National Indian Residential Schools Crisis Line is available through The Indian Residential Schools Resolution Health Support Program. Budget 2021 investments in distinctions-based mental health strategies will renew funding for this. The Hope for Wellness Help Line offers culturally relevant counselling and crisis intervention services to all Indigenous peoples. Additionally, mental health counselling is eligible under the Non-Insured Health Benefits program.
- The Contaminated Sites on Reserve Program funded $182,000 in assessment and remediation work at the Kamloops Indian Residential School site between 1995-2000.
 - Four underground storage tanks were removed, and the soil remediated. Work was undertaken jointly with the First Nation.
 - The sites were closed in 2001.
 - There were no archeological finds or disturbance of grave sites.
- Of the 139 Indian Residential Schools identified in the Indian Residential School Settlement Agreement, approximately 52 are located on reserve lands. ISC has completed projects in 29 First Nation communities which are in proximity of Indian Residential Schools or Indian Day Schools.
- ISC and Crown-Indigenous Relations should be prepared to receive requests outside the scope of residential schools but closely related, including searching similar burial grounds or graveyards outside of hospitals that were previously used to treat tuberculosis. Most of these hospitals are now closed or merged into provincial healthcare systems. Searching burial sites of Indigenous veterans may also become a prominent request.
- Perimeter security is an eligible expense under the Indigenous Community Support Fund. Since March 2020, 454 perimeter security proposals have been funded through the Emergency Management Assistance Program for a total of (approximately) $97.7 million. The Regional Operations Sector is prepared to assist Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc Nation if a need for funding to support perimeter security is identified.

SPEAKING POINTS - DM / POINTS TO REGISTER

Agenda Item 1 – Opening Remarks

- It's been just over a week since the announcement of the devastating discovery of unmarked remains at the former site of the Kamloops residential school.
- Thank you for accepting this invitation. I believe the urgency of the issue requires swift action and a coordinated approach.
- Many gathered here today have been receiving requests for support from indigenous communities, and residential school survivors and their families, be it for mental health supports, further research to identify other possible burial sites or to identify remains.
- I hope you agree that this is an opportunity for us to work together to provide support and healing, taking direction from Indigenous communities themselves.
- Some of you have already offered to partner with us to support communities to conduct land surveys and research. This is a good start and it's the direction that I would like us to pursue.
- We have been speaking with Rosanne Casimir, Chief of the Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc nation to offer any support needed, but we are following her lead.
- They are dealing with the preliminary report, the potential need for security for the community and the site and we have assured the chief that we are ready to offer additional supports as requested.
- We have also been in touch with the First Nations Health Authority in BC regarding mental health supports for the community and the surrounding area, and we've increased mental health and substance use supports across the country.
- We are working together across federal departments to provide added supports while being sensitive to the communities and letting them lead.
- To date we have had offers of support from several federal departments and agencies including the RCMP and the Department of National Defence, who have offered the services of their forensic archaeologist.
- What we are hoping to achieve today is how we can collaborate in the immediate response to this issue, and how we can partner together over the longer term as we reflect on the impact this has had across the country.

- Today you will hear from my colleagues from Crown-Indigenous Relations and Northern Affairs and from Canadian Heritage.
- I will now turn to Daniel Quan-Watson, Deputy Minister, Crown Indigenous Relations and Northern Affairs, to speak to the new program they will launch to address the related TRC Calls to Action. He will also provide an update on the release of the federal pathway for MMIWG.

Agenda item 2 – Federal context

[DM Quan-Watson speaks]

- Thank you Daniel.
- I would also like to ask Gina Wilson, Deputy Minister of Diversity and Inclusion and Youth and Senior Associate Deputy Minister of Canadian Heritage to speak to relevant programming in her department.
- [DM Wilson speaks]
- Thank you Gina.

Agenda item 3 – Federal tools/supports

Crown Indigenous Relations

- Daniel, anything you would like to add to your earlier remarks in terms of supports available to Indigenous communities?

Indigenous Services Canada

- Indigenous Services Canada has a range of programs that can support the needs of indigenous communities and individuals dealing with the impacts of residential schools ranging from mental health and substance use supports, to land surveys and remediation.
- Our immediate focus over the past week has been on increasing mental health and substance use supports offered through the First Nations and Inuit Health Branch.
- The Indian Residential Schools Resolution Health Support Program will continue to provide mental health, emotional, and cultural support services to former residential school students and their families. A 24-hour National Indian Residential School Crisis Line continues to be available through this program. Budget 2021 investments in distinctions-based mental health strategies will renew funding for this program and crisis line.

- The Hope for Wellness Help Line also offers immediate help to all Indigenous peoples across Canada. It is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week and includes counselling and crisis intervention services. Help Line counsellors can help those who just need to talk to someone, are distressed, are experiencing strong emotional reactions or are triggered by painful memories. Culturally relevant support is offered in English, French, Cree, Ojibway, and Inuktitut.
- Additionally, mental health counselling is eligible under the Non-Insured Health Benefits program.
- Canada also funds services provided by Indigenous-operated treatment centres across Canada through the National Native Alcohol and Drug Abuse Program. The program supports 52 residential treatment centres, 500 beds, 550 prevention programs, and employs over 700 workers almost all of whom are employed by Indigenous communities.
- We are all experiencing an increase in requests for land surveys and research into grave or burial sites. Our Lands and Economic Development sector is preparing to triage the requests our regional offices have been receiving. This will be in tandem with the work that ISC is already doing on land remediation, additions to reserve and real property management with respect to former residential school sites.
- While Mental health, substance use and lands are at the forefront right now, ISC is also thinking about how health, education, child and family services and other priority areas will fit into a strategic response.
- We recognize that the legacy of residential schools has contributed to a number of societal issues, not the least of which is intergenerational trauma and the overrepresentation of Indigenous children in care.
- There is a clear relationship between investing in the safety and well-being of children and improved outcomes for these children, their families, and their communities.
- The Act Respecting First Nations, Inuit and Métis children, youth and families provides a path for Indigenous peoples to choose their own solutions for their children and families, and to create a better future for the generations to come. This is an area where Federal/Provincial/Territorial cooperation is essential to positive outcomes.

Canadian Heritage

- Gina, anything you would like to add in terms of supports available to Indigenous communities?

Agenda Item 4 – Round Table

- I look forward to hearing from our provincial and territorial colleagues about what programs are being offered and what opportunities we can identify for partnering.

Agenda Item 5 - Closing Remarks

- This has been a very informative discussion.
- I think there could be value in continuing to use this forum to explore additional ways to collaborate and to share information.
- I wonder if perhaps there could be a way to begin to include Indigenous partners in this dialogue as well. I would welcome your thoughts.
- I believe that our actions, our strong support and collaboration, will have a significant impact on our path towards reconciliation for years to come.
- Thank you all for meeting with us today.

OTHER BACKGROUND MATERIALS

Indigenous Community Support Fund

- Since March 2020, approximately:
 - 718 proposals funded through Urban Programming for Indigenous Peoples to support urban, off-reserve, Inuit and Métis communities totalling $160 million.
 - 1443 proposals funded through Emergency Management Assistance Program to support on-reserve Indigenous communities for a total of $242 million.
 - 454 perimeter security proposals funded through Emergency Management Assistance Program for a total of $97.7 million.
 - 145 food security proposals funded through the Emergency Food Security Fund and Phase 3 of the Indigenous Community Support Fund.
- On April 19, 2021, Budget 2021 proposed an additional $760.8 million for the Indigenous Community Support Fund. Earlier this week, the Minister announced the Phase 4 of the Indigenous Community Support Fund which includes;
 - $200 million in direct allocations to First Nations, Inuit and Métis communities delivered in early June.
 - $200 million in direct allocations to First Nations, Inuit and Métis communities to be delivered in Fall 2021.
 - a further $360 million in needs-based COVID-19 support for Indigenous communities and organizations, including $150 million to support Indigenous Peoples living in urban centres and members of First Nations living off reserve.
 - the remaining $800,000 has been set aside for administration to ensure the swift delivery of funds.
- Perimeter security and food security have been a significant focus for First Nations communities. Communities took the initiative of setting-up stations at community entrances to monitor flow of people, ensure entry requirements and set-up contact tracing. The Indigenous Community Support Fund supported additional human resources required, equipment to set-up temporary facilities, cleaning supplies and non-medical personal protective equipment.

Speaking Points/Key Messages:

- COVID-19 considerations remain top of mind, especially in the context of emergency management and evacuations.
- On June 2nd, the Honourable Marc Miller highlighted $760.8 million in funding proposed in Budget 2021, a portion of which will be allocated through the needs-based funding request process that just reopened.

- Of the total funding, $200 million is being directly allocated to communities in early June and a further $200 million will be directly distributed to communities in Fall 2021.

If pressed/reactive lines:

- Direct allocations were provided to First Nations communities to enable some funding to be available immediately to those communities that face pressures because of outbreaks or escalating risk factors.
- The department continues to process needs-based requests and will continue to work with all First Nations, Inuit and Métis communities and Indigenous organizations to support COVID-19 needs. All requests are being reviewed and approved by Indigenous Services Canada as per the selection criteria listed on the website.
- Vaccine rollout initiatives for urban and off-reserve Indigenous communities and organizations will continue to be eligible under the Indigenous Community Support Fund.

Relevant Budget 2021 Investments

Healing/Mental Wellness/Support for Residential Schools

- Budget 2021 proposes to provide $597.6M over three years for a distinctions-based mental health and wellness strategy with First Nations, Inuit, and the Métis Nation. This will build on existing strengths, help address gaps and be responsive to current, emerging and future needs.
- The strategy will renew funding for the Indian Residential Schools Health Supports Program and Crisis Line, which provide healing supports for survivors of childhood trauma and residential schools. It will also stabilize and expand community-based supports and capacity, increase substance use treatment and prevention, and support workforce development.
- Emotional and cultural support services for former Indian Residential School students and their families, which are available on and off-reserve across Canada.
- $248 million over 3 years, also from Budget 2018, to continue health support services to former Indian Residential School students and their families.

Child and Family Services

- Budget 2021 proposes an investment of $1 billion over five years and $118.7 million ongoing starting in 2021-22, to increase funding under the First Nations Child and Family Services Program.
- Reducing the number of Indigenous children in care remains one of the Government's top priorities. Indigenous Services Canada is working with partners to reform the First Nations Child and Family Services (FNCFS) Program.
- As a result of collaborative work with the First Nations Child and Family Caring Society and the Assembly of First Nations, Canada will increase funding to support on-reserve First Nations children, families and communities who are not served by First Nations child and family services (FNCFS) agencies.
- The Government of Canada is continuing the important work in full partnership with Indigenous Peoples to reform child and family services so that all Indigenous children have the opportunity to grow up in their communities, immersed in their cultures, and surrounded by loved ones.

MMIWG/Gender-based Violence

- $17.1 million, announced in July 2020, to ensure continued access to health supports for those impacted by Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women and Girls, and to expand access for the first time to cultural, emotional, and mental health support services for those affected by the trauma associated with their attendance at any historic Federal Indian Day School including their families.
- For those affected by the tragedy of missing and murdered Indigenous women and girls, ISC covers confidential health and cultural support services provided by Elders and Traditional Healers, skilled Indigenous community-based workers and mental health workers who are enrolled with ISC.
- Budget 2021 proposes to provide $861 million over five years, beginning in 2021-22, and $145 million ongoing, to support culturally responsive policing and community safety services in Indigenous communities. This investment seeks to address the Calls for Justice, which are further supported by critical investments to advance a new National Action Plan to End Gender-Based Violence, including $55 million over five years, beginning in 2021-22, for the Department for Women and Gender Equality to bolster the capacity of Indigenous women and 2SLGBTQQIA+ organizations to provide gender-based violence prevention programming aimed at addressing the root causes of violence against Indigenous women, girls, and 2SLGBTQQIA+ people.

Emergency shelters and second-stage housing

- As announced in the Fall Economic Statements, the Government is committing $304M over 5 years for a Comprehensive Violence Prevention Strategy (MMIWG - FVPP) -- (CMHC lead, CIRNA and ISC-ESDPP participants).
- This strategy supports the operation of an additional 38 emergency shelters, as well as operational funding for 50 new Indigenous-led second stage housing initiatives, to provide First Nations women and children living on and off reserve, as well as Indigenous women and children across the country, including in Inuit Nunangat or in urban centers, greater access to places of refuge when escaping violence. A parallel proposal from the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation would support the construction of these new shelters and second stage housing.

Lands and Economic Development Programming

Background

General

- Through its Contaminated Sites Management Program, Indigenous Services Canada works with First Nations partners to protect the health and safety of First Nations people and the environment on reserve lands by assessing and remediating areas of environmental concern.
- Typically, contaminated sites include leaking fuel tanks, dump sites, areas of contaminated fill, and contamination associated with vehicle maintenance.
- As part of these assessments, the Program also funds archeological work. Information on site history is gathered from Elders and those familiar with the land to identify past activities on reserve. An archaeological monitor is retained for site assessment and remediation projects in areas of archaeological concern.

Kamloops

- Through its Contaminated Sites on Reserve Program, ISC funded $182,000 in assessment and remediation work at the Kamloops Indian Residential School site between 1995-2000.
- Four underground storage tanks were removed, and the soil remediated. Work was undertaken jointly with the First Nation.
- There were no archeological finds or disturbance of grave sites and the sites were closed in 2001.

Key Messages:

- ISC works closely with First Nations communities on remediation projects in proximity to residential schools and day schools on reserve.
- In all cases, the Department confirms that First Nations leadership is engaged throughout the process and is supportive of activities related to the project.
- At this time, ISC is unaware of any remains disturbed in association with past contaminated sites projects at former residential schools. An archaeological specialist is retained where potential archaeological impacts are identified (preferably from the First Nation).

If Pressed:

- If there is the possibility that archeological artifacts or remains may be encountered, an archeological monitor is assigned to the project.
- In the event that an unmarked burial site is discovered, the archeological monitor implements an immediate pause on all activity. Chief and Council is immediately notified, as is the relevant policing agency. A senior archeologist is brought in to help preserve the site and identify next steps, jointly with the First Nation.

- At some sites, Indian Residential Schools have been demolished to allow for remediation of contaminated soil and water. The decision to demolish the school is made by the First Nation.

Key Data:

- The Federal Contaminated Sites on Reserve Program is planning to undertake 180 assessments and 475 remediation activities, across approximately 250 communities, between 2020-2025. Since the program began, over 2,500 sites have been closed.
 - • Five assessment and remediation projects of former Indian Residential Schools are planned for 2021-22:
 - Lejac, Nadleh Whuten First Nation, British Columbia ($2.4 million);
 - St George's School, Lytton First Nation, British Columbia (estimated $50,000);
 - St. Mary's, Wauzhushk Onigum Nation, Ontario ($1.4 million);
 - James Masty Shop and Former Federal School, Whapmagoostui, Quebec (funding to be determined); and
 - Chooutla Residential School, YK ($97,500)
 - In 2021-2022, the Contaminated Sites on Reserve Program will fund approximately $45 million in assessment and remediation projects on reserve.

It will start the process of building a new community centre, supported by both the federal and provincial government. BC previously announced it will invest $1.5M to build the new facility. Premier Horgan repeated his government's responsibility to implement the 94 calls to action in the TRC noting the government's commitment through mandate letters, work being done, and the adoption of UNDRIP. B.C. provincial health officer Dr. Bonnie Henry committed to meeting with her teams to discuss further steps and work to implement more of the calls to action and rights outlined in United Nations 		<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc First Nation received a grant from B.C.'s Pathway to Healing program, which allowed the nation to pay for ground-penetrating radar in finding the 215 children. Delivering on Truth and Reconciliation Commission Calls to Action \(rcaanc-cirnac.gc.ca\)

71. We call upon all chief coroners and provincial vital statistics agencies that have not provided to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada their records on the deaths of Aboriginal children in the care of residential school authorities to make these documents available to the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation.

What's happening?

The Government of Canada is not the lead on a response for Call to Action 71.

72. We call upon the federal government to allocate sufficient resources to the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation to allow it to develop and maintain the National Residential School Student Death Register established by the Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada.

What's happening?

Crown-Indigenous Relations and Northern Affairs Canada has provided funding to the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation to support the development of a database registering the children who died or went missing while at Indian residential schools. This represents a critical first step towards addressing Calls to Action 73 to 76.

In addition, Budget 2019 announced $33.8 million over 3 years, starting in fiscal year 2019 to 2020, to develop and maintain the National Residential School Student Death Register and work with parties to establish and maintain an online registry of residential school cemeteries.

73. We call upon the federal government to work with churches, Aboriginal communities, and former residential school students to establish and maintain an online registry of residential school cemeteries, including, where possible, plot maps showing the location of deceased residential school children.

What's happening?

Crown-Indigenous Relations and Northern Affairs Canada has begun discussions with various partners, internal and external to the federal government, towards collaborating on an engagement strategy to gain a better understanding of the range of Indigenous family and community needs and interests and about how best to move forward in a comprehensive manner on all of the calls to actions regarding children who died or went missing while attending Indian residential schools (Calls to Action 72 to 76).

74. We call upon the federal government to work with the churches and Aboriginal community leaders to inform the families of children who died at residential schools of the child's burial location, and to respond to families' wishes for appropriate commemoration ceremonies and markers, and reburial in home communities where requested.

75. We call upon the federal government to work with provincial, territorial, and municipal governments, churches, Aboriginal communities, former residential school students, and current landowners to develop and implement strategies and procedures for the ongoing identification, documentation, maintenance, commemoration, and protection of residential school cemeteries or other sites at which residential school children were buried. This is to include the provision of

76. We call upon the parties engaged in the work of documenting, maintaining, commemorating, and protecting residential school cemeteries to adopt strategies in accordance with the following principles:

- i. The Aboriginal community most affected shall lead the development of such strategies.
- ii. Information shall be sought from residential school Survivors and other Knowledge Keepers in the development of such strategies.
- iii. Aboriginal protocols shall be respected before any potentially invasive technical inspection and investigation of a cemetery site.

What's happening?

Crown-Indigenous Relations and Northern Affairs Canada has begun discussions with various partners, internal and external to the federal government, towards collaborating on an engagement strategy to gain a better understanding of the range of Indigenous family and community needs and interests and about how best to move forward in a comprehensive manner on all of the calls to actions regarding children who died or went missing while attending Indian residential schools (Calls to Action 72 to 76).

Spoke with Lynne – they expect to have (at a minimum) an overview of what PTs are saying publicly by late this aft. They will also reach out to Regions to try to get a pulse on early opportunities to partner with PTs, but that may trickle in over the next day or two.

Hoping that works . . .

Hi:

I am getting some requests on our next steps with respect to Kamloops and specifically on support for communities to conduct land surveys. ON wants to partner, as does MB – I know we have a call tonight but perhaps would be good for us to discuss and see how we engage PTs. If you agree, perhaps I can set up a call for later or tomorrow?

Thanks.

Hi,
I wanted to follow up on where things stand since the FPT meeting. We had discussed a follow-up email detailing our program at federal level and the requests that have come in to share bilaterally. I'm a bit concerned as I would like to get info out ASAP and apologies if things are with me but I did want to check on our planning....let me know.
thanks. Chris

Subject: READOUT FPT DMs of IA meeting re: residential school sites, June 7, 2021

Clean version . . .

Today, June 7, 2021, Deputy Minister of Indigenous Services Canada, Christiane Fox, chaired a meeting with her Deputy Minister counterparts from CIRNA (Daniel Quan-Watson) and PCH (Gina Wilson), and with DM/ADMs from all provinces and territories (with the exception of Nova Scotia), on federal-provincial/territorial collaboration in response to the discovery at what could be the remains of children at the site of the former Kamloops Residential School.

Federal Deputies highlighted the following main points:

- Federal programming available includes:
 - ISC – Mental health, help lines, lands and demolition of residential schools
 - PCH – Commemorating the History and Legacy of Residential Schools Fund ($13.4M over 5 years + $2.5M ongoing)
 - CIRNA – Residential school Impacts funding ($27M) in three areas:
 - 1) Community research knowledge gathering and planning
 - 2) Archaeological work and experts
 - 3) Memorials and commemoration
- Details and application forms to be posted tomorrow (June 8)
- Other federal departments and agencies have come forward to offer assistance (DND, RCMP, Transport Canada)
- The federal government is offering a “no wrong door” coordinated approach, to be led by a task force
- Federal/provincial/territorial partnerships are emerging; strong, open lines of communication among levels of government and complementarity are essential

Provincial and territorial participants noted:

- The need for Indigenous communities to lead and for federal, provincial and territorial governments to support
- Strong support for this forum to share information, coordinate approaches, and avoid multiple doors
- A desire to explore funding coordination where possible, as well as the potential need for greater funding
- The critical importance of mental health supports, particularly given overlay with pandemic and opioid crisis
- The impacts of high levels of media attention on individuals and communities
- The need to continue efforts and progress on the Calls to Action and broader initiatives towards reconciliation.

Provincial and territorial participants also shared some more specific interests and opportunities to collaborate, including:

- BC (offer to stand up an Emergency Operations Centre for/with Tk'emlups)
- Saskatchewan (potential to partner on incoming FSIN proposal)
- Ontario (developing proposal for Minister and Cabinet, similar in construct to new CIRNA programming)
- New Brunswick (impacts for day schools)
- PEI/others (issue of children sent to residential school out-of-province)
- NU and NWT (desire to partner on recovery/treatment centres)
- NWT (interest in accessing ground-penetrating radar expertise/technology without investing in their own)

- Yukon (upcoming demolition of former Lower Post residential school, with Premiers Horgan and Silver to attend)

Follow-ups - Federal Deputies agreed to share:

1. Short descriptions/links to relevant federal programs
2. Requests received from communities by jurisdiction (bilaterally)
3. Details on available mental health supports and key statistics.

The Deputy Minister of ISC committed to organize follow-up meetings of the Table to maintain open lines of communication.

Chris, here is revised FPT meeting agenda and invitation, and the overview of the approach/tiger team.

I added a couple of things to the EOC (reference to tracking proposals, requests, engagements) – standing by if you would like any further revisions.

For the invitation text, French fixed up (!) and added your point about inviting PTs to send a delegate if they cannot attend. Also note the last square bracketed paragraph before the signature block which the DM may or may not wish to include (though I like it).

Invitation

Bonjour chers collègues,

À la suite de l'annonce de la découverte dévastatrice au pensionnat de Kamloops, j'aimerais vous inviter à discuter des développements et des stratégies pour aborder la question des pensionnats alors que nous essayons tous de naviguer sur la voie à suivre.

Au cours de cette réunion, nous partagerons des informations sur les outils et les soutiens fédéraux que nous pouvons exploiter et quelques réflexions initiales sur la façon dont nous pouvons coordonner les efforts.

Je comprends qu'il s'agisse d'un préavis plutôt court, mais j'attends avec impatience votre contribution à cette importante discussion. Veuillez envoyer un délégué si vous ne pouvez pas y assister.

Christiane Fox

Good Afternoon Colleagues,

Following the announcement of the devastating discovery at the Kamloops Indian residential school, I would like to invite you to discuss developments and strategies to address the residential schools issue as we all try to navigate the path forward.

During this meeting, we will share information about federal tools and supports that can be leveraged and some initial thoughts on how we may coordinate efforts.

I am looking to you to share requests and reactions received within your jurisdiction, what your government may be considering as a response, and what opportunities might arise for partnership.

I appreciate this is rather short notice but I look forward to your input in this important discussion. Please send a delegate if you are unable to attend.

[Our thoughts continue to be with the Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc First Nation and all those directly and indirectly affected by this unsettling discovery and by the legacy of the residential school system.]

Proposal for a Response Team:

June 2021

Issue:

- The finding of children's remains at the site of the former Kamloops Indian Residential School has raised the profile of the issues surrounding missing children and burial information in relation to the legacy of residential schools in Canada.
- While Crown-Indigenous Relations has a leadership role in the Government's response and forward strategy, Indigenous Services Canada is heavily implicated, including with respect to:
 - Its program streams, and in particular, land and environment, mental health and healing, child and family services, education and associated investments
 - Its regional presence
 - Its policy directions, ensuring alignment with other initiatives (MMIWG CFS, UNDRIP, justice and policing etc) and providing evidence-based advice to Ministers
 - Its litigation management strategy
 - Its relationships with partners – Indigenous partners, PTs, CAs/OGDs (esp CIRNA and PCH), survivors and families, international organizations including UN
 - Its strategic communications with regional, national and international media
 - Its staff complement, with a high percentage of Indigenous employees
- Given the whole-of-ISC implications in responding to the TRC Calls to Action (in particular 71-76), it is recommended that the Department launch a tiger team to coordinate ISC response and contribute to the broader Government effort.

Mandate:

- To support the Minister and the Deputies in setting strategic direction and prioritizing actions and resources, aligning with other whole of government efforts to address the TRC Calls to Action
- To be accountable for and track the Department's actions that demonstrate progress against TRC Calls to Action
- To provide leadership on behalf of ISC as the point of contact with CIR on coordinated response
- To support whole-of-ISC governance to ensure a timely, coordinated and sustained response
- To provide a single point of entry/exit on information and directions with respect to the response
 - With Regions
 - With CAs and OGDs (especially CIR, PCH, Justice, Public Safety)
 - With Indigenous partners
 - With PTs, including development of FPT coordinated response strategies, where appropriate;
- To support sectors in their engagements
- To be culturally-safe, trauma and violence informed

Organization:

- Given the whole-of-ISC, cross-sectoral implications, it is suggested that the Response Team be situated within the Strategic Policy and Partnerships Sector (SPP)

- The Team would be:
 - Headed by an Executive (suggest EX-03 level), reporting directly to the ADM, Strategic Policy & Partnerships
 - Include 4 temporary full-time FTEs (suggest one FTE with experience in each of policy, operations, engagement, including Indigenous and PT) as micro-missions
 - Leverage a broader network across the department, with designated contacts in each of the Department's sectors and functions

Next Steps:

- Confirm establishment of team in SPP
- Identify lead Executive, and nominate FTEs
- Identify sector/functional points of contact
- Organize for early deliverables, including
 - dashboard on key information (incoming requests/proposals)
 - tracking of engagements
- Note to Minister on organization and early deliverables, including:
 - Governance
 - Go-Forward Strategy, with Short- and Medium-Term Deliverables, including: recommended outreach, research/analysis, and decisions required, timing

Subject: Message to employees

Deputies,

To expedite, I am sending this directly to you. If you agree, we'll get this sent out this afternoon so employees are aware.

Chers collègues,

Suite à notre message vendredi (voir ci-dessous), voici une mise à jour importante que nous tenions à partager avec vous.

Les drapeaux sur la Tour de la Paix à Ottawa et sur tous les édifices et établissements du gouvernement du Canada partout au pays flotteront en berne, et ce jusqu'à nouvel ordre, pour souligner la terrible découverte au pensionnat de Kamloops de 215 corps d'enfants et aussi en mémoire des milliers d'enfants qui ont été envoyés dans des pensionnats, de ceux qui n'en sont jamais revenus et en l'honneur des familles dont la vie a été changée à jamais.

Dear colleagues,

Following our message on Friday (see below), here is an important update that we wanted to share with you.

Flags on the Peace Tower in Ottawa and on all Government of Canada buildings and establishments across the country will be flown at half-mast, and until further notice, to mark the terrible discovery at the Kamloops residential school of the bodies of 215 children and also in memory of the thousands of children who were sent to residential schools, of those who never returned, and in honour of the families whose lives were forever changed.

If you ever feel the need to talk to someone, or know someone who does, there are different resources available, including the Employee Assistance Program, which you can reach by calling 1-800-268-7708 (or TTY for people with hearing impairments at 1-800-567-5803). A National Indian Residential School Crisis Line has been set up to provide support to former residential school students. You can access emotional and crisis referral services by calling the 24-Hour National Crisis Line at 1-866-925-4419. Indigenous employees can also access the Hope for Wellness Help Line at 1-855-242-3310, or connect to the online chat through their website (to access the web site, please copy and paste the following link in your browser: <https://www.hopeforwellness.ca/>).

Val,

For your review and approval, updated DM message on Kamloops, adding content on the CTA Anniversary and the funds being announced related to CTA 72-76 connected with Kamloops.

Comms is hoping to send this updated message from the joint ISC-CIRNA DM account as soon as we get approval.

I will share with the DM once you have a chance to review.

Chers collègues,

Aujourd'hui le 2 juin marque le 6ème anniversaire de la parution des 94 appels à l'action de la Commission de vérité et réconciliation (CVR) et malheureusement la mise à jour de la tombe anonyme à Kamloops ne fait que confirmer ce qui avait été énoncé à de nombreuses reprises lors des audiences.

En 2016, le gouvernement du Canada s'est engagé à financer le travail du Centre national pour la vérité et la réconciliation (CNVR) et s'est engagé dans le budget 2019 à poursuivre le travail commencé par la CVR et à mettre en œuvre les appels à l'action 74 à 76 (enfants disparus et informations sur les sépultures) avec un financement de 27 millions de dollars.

Ce financement aide le CNVR à établir les registres des décès, des enterrements et des cimetières. Ce financement aidera également les partenaires et les communautés autochtones à élaborer des plans communautaires, à mener des recherches et à recueillir des connaissances locales, à accéder à des services professionnels d'enquête archéologique pour identifier et délimiter les sites d'inhumation, et à commémorer et ramener les restes de leurs proches chez eux, comme demandé.

Mais au-delà de cette annonce, des symboles et des discours, ce qui demeure important est que nous devons tous individuellement travailler à construire un avenir meilleur, plus inclusif, plus compréhensif. Et cela commence par l'apprentissage et l'ouverture sur l'autre.

La réconciliation est une question de guérison. La réconciliation exige la reconnaissance de la vérité. La réconciliation exige que chacun d'entre nous fasse sa part pour comprendre la douleur et travailler en partenariat avec les peuples autochtones sur la voie à suivre.

Dear colleagues,

Today, June 2, marks the 6th anniversary of the release of the 94 Calls to Action of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission (TRC) and the finding of the unmarked gravesite in Kamloops only confirms what was stated many times during the hearings.

In 2016, the Government of Canada made the commitment to fund the work of the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation (NCTR) and committed in Budget 2019 to continue the work started by the TRC and to implement Calls to Action 74 to 76 (Missing Children and Burial Information) with $27 million in funding.

This funding is supporting the NCTR in establishing the registries for deaths, burials and cemeteries. This funding will also support Indigenous partners and communities in developing community plans, conducting research and gathering local knowledge, accessing professional archaeological investigation services to identify and delineate burial sites, and to memorialize, commemorate and return their loved ones' remains home, as requested.

But beyond this funding, symbols and speeches, what remains important is that we must all individually work to build a better, more inclusive, more understanding future. And it starts with learning and being open to each other and make sure everyone around us is important.

Reconciliation is about healing. Reconciliation requires acknowledging the truth. Reconciliation requires each of us to do our part to understand the pain and work in partnership with Indigenous peoples on the path forward.

Message des sous-ministres de RCAANC et de SAC

Sujet : Pensionnat autochtones à Kamloops / Kamloops Indian Residential School

(English follows)

Ce message traite de sujets susceptibles de provoquer des traumatismes évoqués par des souvenirs d'abus passés. Nous reconnaissons que certains employés peuvent ne pas vouloir continuer à lire pour minimiser le risque associé au déclenchement.

Chers collègues,

C'est avec beaucoup de tristesse que nous avons appris la découverte de 215 corps d'enfants sur le site d'un ancien pensionnat autochtone à Kamloops, en Colombie-Britannique.

Nos pensées vont aujourd'hui vers la Première Nation Tk'emlups te Secwépemc ainsi que toutes les personnes touchées directement ou non par cette macabre découverte et par l'héritage du système des pensionnats indiens.

Cela nous rappelle un chapitre très sombre de notre histoire. Mais nous devons continuer à travailler avec les survivants et les familles des victimes afin de rebâtir une relation basée sur la reconnaissance de leurs droits, le respect, la collaboration et la confiance. Nos ministères se sont adressés à des partenaires, comme l'Autorité sanitaire des Premières nations, pour offrir toute l'aide qu'ils peuvent fournir.

This email deals with topics that may cause trauma invoked by memories of past abuse. We recognize some employees may not want to read on to minimize the risk associated with triggering.

Dear colleagues,

It was with great sadness that we learned of the discovery of 215 children's bodies at the site of a former residential school in Kamloops, British Columbia.

Our thoughts today are with the Tk'emlups te Secwépemc First Nation and all those directly and indirectly affected by this gruesome discovery and by the legacy of the residential school system.

It reminds us of a very dark chapter in our history. But we must continue to work with survivors and families of those lost to rebuild a relationship based on recognition of their rights, respect, collaboration and trust. Our departments have reached out to partners, such as the First Nations Health Authority, to offer any assistance that the Departments can provide.

If you need support or know someone who would need it, different resources are available to you through the Employee Assistance Program by calling 1-800-268-7708 (or TTY for people with hearing impairments at 1-800-567-5803). A National Indian Residential School Crisis Line has been set up to provide support for former Residential School students. You can access emotional and crisis referral services by calling 24-Hour National Crisis Line: 1-866-925-4419. Indigenous employees can also access the Hope for Wellness Help Line at 1-855-242-3310 or connect to the online chat on their website.

Question

Are you able to tell me if the government plans to fund more exploratory work following the discovery of 215 children's bodies found at one BC residential school? I am not writing a story but am prepping for a TV panel and want to make sure I know of any response from the government.

Response:

A total of $33.8 million over three years has been set aside to support this important work. Funding ($2.6M) has already been provided to the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation to support their work in developing and maintaining the student death register, called for in Call to Action 72 and the department is in active discussions with the NCTR to provide funding (up to $800K) to support the development of the burial register, in response to Call to Action 73. The remaining $27.1 million will be allocated to supporting the important work of communities in locating, memorializing and commemorating those children who died while at Indian Residential Schools. The dark legacy of Indian Residential Schools has caused and continues to cause such harm and pain – the Government has made significant investments to provide health and healing supports to Survivors, their families and communities as determined by them to address their needs.

Good morning Kelley and Valerie, below is the financial information for environmental assessment and remediation on sites on or near the Kamloops Indian Residential School undertaken by the contaminated sites program. All work was done in relation to underground oil storage tanks. All the of the sites closed in 2000 and 2001. There were no archeological findings.

- In 1995-96 $15,920 was spent on environmental site assessment
- In 1998-99 $53,390 was spent on remediation
- In 1999-00 $112,847 was spent on remediation

Total expenditures: $182, 157

The Budget (Vote 1 and Vote 10) for the Contaminated Sites on Reserve Program more broadly is attached.

Please note that the program will continue to work to provide disaggregated site by site amounts. Will keep you apprised as to progress.

Contaminated Sites Assessments and Remediation Projects in Proximity to Residential Schools on Reserve
Information Deputy Minister

SUMMARY

- In light of the recent discovery of the grave site at the Kamloops Indian Residential School, this note provides background to, and a list of, contaminated sites projects on reserve lands in the area of Indian Residential Schools (Annex A).
- Due to the intrusive nature of contaminated sites work, there could be a risk of disturbance of potential unknown grave sites.
- LED-Environment Directorate is working with the regions to identify current and planned remediation projects in proximity to residential schools on reserve; confirm that First Nations leadership continues to be supportive of these activities; and that appropriate measures are taken to ensure that associated assessment and remediation work does not have the potential to disturb grave sites.
- In addition to this work, contaminated sites and waste management funding has paid for the demolition of two residential schools; an additional three residential schools are planned for demolition in 2021-22.

BACKGROUND

- The Indian Residential School Settlement Agreement identified 139 residential schools. Approximately 52 residential schools are located on reserve lands (Annex B). Canada is responsible for the environmental management of these lands.
- Specifically, the Contaminated Sites on Reserve Program funds the assessment and remediation of contaminated sites on reserve lands.
- Due to the nature of contaminated sites work, there may be a risk of disturbance of grave sites at projects funded by ISC through the Contaminated Sites on Reserve Program.
- LED-Environment is working with the Regions to map contaminated sites projects located in proximity to residential schools on reserve to ensure strong community engagement and appropriate precautions prior to assessment or remediation activities, which may include subsurface disturbance.
- Four assessment and remediation projects are planned in the area of Indian Residential Schools for 2021-22:
 - Lejac, Nadleh Whuten First Nation, BC (site restoration),
 - St George's School, Lytton First Nation, BC (site assessment),
 - St. Mary's, Wauzhushk Onigum Nation, ON (remediation)

- James Masty Shop and Former Federal School, Whapmagoostui, QC (remediation, pending available funding).
- At this time, ISC is unaware of any remains disturbed in association with past contaminated sites projects at former residential schools. An archaeological specialist is retained where potential archaeological impacts are identified (preferably from the First Nation).
- In addition, and at the request of communities, the Contaminated Sites on Reserve Program and First Nations Waste Management Initiative has supported the demolition of two residential schools on reserve:
 - St. Michael's (Namgis First Nation, BC, 2015), and
 - Lejac Residential School (Nadleh Whuten First Nation, BC, 1997).
- An additional three residential schools are planned for demolition:
 - Lower Post (Daylu Dena Council, YK) on June 21, 2021;
 - Coqualeetza (21 Stölö First Nations, BC) and Alberni (Tseshaht First Nation, BC), both likely in 2022.
- The Coqualeetza site is planned for an Addition to Reserve. In addition to serving as a residential school, the building planned for demolition later housed a tuberculosis hospital.
- Demolition activities allow for remediation of soil and groundwater to reduce potential impacts on human health and/or the environment. ISC funding is transferred to First Nations, who have substantial control over these activities.

CONSIDERATIONS

- In light of recent events, there may be increased sensitivity by First Nations and federal officials associated with completing remediation projects associated with residential schools on reserve lands.
- Approaches to site assessment and remediation at sensitive reserve lands will be reassessed in consultation with First Nations leadership.
- Where requested by the First Nations leadership, the Contaminated Sites on Reserve Program will delay any projects planned on reserve lands which may have housed Indian Residential Schools to allow for adequate additional consultation and assessment.
- First Nations may approach ISC for funding to identify grave sites on reserve in advance of projects which may disturb soils, including contaminated sites assessment and remediation. The CIRNAC Settlement Agreement and Childhood Claims Branch was advanced $21.7 million in Budget 2019 to develop tools and options in partnership with First Nations to carry out related activities.

NEXT STEPS

- We will continue to work with regions to map contaminated sites projects to ensure that we have a complete list of projects in the area of residential schools.

ANNEXES

Annex A: List of Contaminated Sites Projects at Indian Residential Schools

How about this? We hope it addresses the Associate's concerns.

(English follows)

Ce message traite de sujets susceptibles de provoquer des traumatismes liés à des souvenirs de mauvais traitements. Nous sommes conscients que certains employés pourraient ne pas vouloir lire la suite afin de minimiser le risque associé au déclenchement de ces traumatismes.

Chers collègues,

Cette semaine nous avons dû faire face à beaucoup d'émotion et à beaucoup de douleur. Le sort de ces jeunes enfants, morts et enterrés sans sépulture sans que leur famille ne soit mise au courant nous bouleverse tous. Nous pouvons vous assurer que nous sommes prêts à travailler sans relâche avec vous et les partenaires afin de trouver les réponses nécessaires.

Plusieurs d'entre nous sont directement touchés par cette nouvelle, que ce soit en raison de leur expérience personnelle dans un pensionnat autochtone ou en raison de celle d'un membre de leur famille directe (père, mère, oncle, tante, cousin, cousine). Nous voulons vous assurer de notre soutien inconditionnel.

Votre dévouement quotidien pour aider à améliorer les conditions de vie des peuples autochtones, votre travail acharné pour faire avancer la Réconciliation ne sont pas vains. Nous sommes impressionnés et fiers de tout ce que vous accomplissez.

Depuis quelques années, nous avons assisté à un tournant dans la prise de conscience collective de ce qu'ont vécu et vivent encore les peuples autochtones. Et votre travail prend toute sa signification et sa pleine mesure. Nous continuerons ensemble, plus forts, vers la construction d'un pays uni et inclusif.

Aux équipes en région, aux gestionnaires, aux collègues, votre support auprès de vos collègues est très important et nécessaire. Soyez à l'écoute, discutez et veillez les uns sur les autres.

Si vous avez besoin de soutien psychologique, ou si vous connaissez quelqu'un qui en aurait besoin, différentes ressources sont offertes, dont la ligne téléphonique d'aide aux employés, au 1-800-268-7708 (pour malentendants - ATS au 1-800-567-5803). Une ligne d'écoute téléphonique de Résolution des questions de pensionnats indiens offre du soutien aux anciens élèves des pensionnats. Jour et nuit, vous pouvez accéder à des services de soutien affectif et d'aiguillage en situation de crise en composant le 1-866-925-4419. Les employés autochtones peuvent aussi rejoindre la ligne d'écoute d'espoir pour le mieux-être au 1-855-242-3310 ou clavarder en ligne sur leur site (pour accéder à leur site Web, veuillez copier et coller l'hyperlien suivant dans votre navigateur Web : <https://www.espoirpourelmieuxetre.ca/>).

This message deals with topics that may cause trauma by invoking memories of past abuse. We recognize that some employees may not want to read on to minimize the risk associated with triggering.

Dear colleagues,

This week we had to deal with a lot of emotion and a lot of pain. The fate of these young First Nations children, who have died and buried anonymously without their families knowing about them, is devastating to all of us. We can assure you that we will work tirelessly with you and our partners to find the necessary answers.

Many of us have been directly affected by this news, either because of your personal experiences at a residential school or a direct family member such as a parent, uncle, aunt, or grandparent. We want to assure you of our unconditional support.

Your daily dedication to help improving the lives of Indigenous Peoples, your hard work to advance Reconciliation, is not in vain. We are impressed and proud of everything you do.

Over the past few years, we have witnessed a turning point in the collective awareness of what Indigenous Peoples have experienced and continue to experience. And your work takes on its full meaning and its full measure. We will continue all together, stronger, to build a united and inclusive country.

To regional teams, managers, colleagues, your support to your peers is very important and necessary. Listen, discuss and watch out for each other.

If you need support—or know someone who does—different resources are available to you through the Employee Assistance Program, which you can reach by calling 1-800-268-7708 (or TTY for people with hearing impairments at 1-800-567-5803). SPEAKING POINTS FOR THE MINISTER OF INDIGENOUS

Kamloops Indian Residential School Tragedy (To be presented at the Cabinet Committee on Reconciliation on June 2, 2021)

- It is with a heavy heart that I speak to you today.
- As I know you are all aware, last Thursday the Tk'emlúps te Secwépemc First Nation announced that preliminary findings from a survey of the grounds at the former Kamloops Indian Residential School have uncovered the remains of 215 children buried at the site. It is estimated that the youngest of these children would have been just three years old.
- This is not simply a historic tragedy – many of those children have relatives alive today. This news is beyond heart-breaking, it is a painful reminder of that dark and shameful chapter of our country's history, history that continues to have wide-spread ramifications today.
- I spoke with Kukpi7 Casimir on Thursday evening to offer the full support of my department as the community and surrounding communities honour and mourn the loss of these children.
- This tragedy underscores the need for comprehensive mental health supports, which is a priority for my department. Given the potential for re-traumatization of survivors, their families and communities, there will likely be an increased demand for emotional, cultural and mental health support services under ISC's Mental Wellness Program, which includes the Indian Residential Schools Resolution Health Support Program.

- Ensuring access to emotional and cultural supports and mental health counselling is considered a best practice in supporting psychological safety during processes that have the potential to re-traumatize.
- This tragedy also underscores the importance of First Nations, Inuit and Métis to exercise jurisdiction over child and family services and establishes national principles such as best interests of the child, cultural continuity, and substantive equality to help guide the provision of child and family services in relation to Indigenous children.
- This right is affirmed in the Act respecting First Nations, Inuit and Métis children, youth and families, which came into force on January 1, 2020.
- My Department is committed to ensuring that families at risk receive support and prevention services designed to maintain familial support systems, and to keeping children in their communities, connected to their language and culture.
- As we strive to address the legacy of the past and recognize the children whose lives were lost and irreparably damaged, we must all turn to the future and ensure we set up the next generation with the investments needed to allow children, families and communities to thrive and flourish.

- Across Canada, as flags fly at half-mast and children's shoes sit on steps, Indigenous communities and leaders warn that this is not an isolated incident. There are calls to protect the sites of former residential schools, until full investigations can be done.
- We cannot undo the past, but we must do everything possible to support communities as they tell us what is needed to finally close the chapter on residential schools and work towards healing.
